When Japanese Swim
An Egg for Babe Ruth
Fidelity? What Kind?
Two Bottles, 3 Deaths

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

JAPAN prepares a flight from Tokio to Seattle, and mark this, IF THE JAPANESE START FOR SEATTLE, THEY WILL FLY TO SEATTLE. They are thorough.

HAVE you ever seen sailors of Japan's navy swimming? Led by an officer they swim, in wedge shape formation, each man keeping his proper place in the water, all keeping time with even strokes, as in marching. And they swim, in the ocean, 20 miles at a time. Men of that sort will fly the Pacific, if they undertake to fly it.

AT Omaha, Babe Ruth received, as a token of his greatness, an egg laid by Lady Norfolk, champion hen of the world.

It was the 170th egg laid, or batted out by that hen in 170 days. Ruth remarked: "A hen's egg by the rivers of Jordan, a simple hen's egg was to him, and nothing more," and went on with his batting. It would surprise the idol of America to know that such a hen as Lady Norfolk is more important to the country than all its baseball players.

MRS. ELINOR GLYN, who usally knows more about the human heart than the heart knows about itself, says physical fidelity is not necessary in marriage.

The true woman requires, says she, only mental and physical fidelity." Police court records do not support that theory. Marriage was designed to make men take care of their children and to make husbands more civilized through self-control.

Some mysterious wisdom tells wives that mere mental and physical fidelity is not sufficient insurance for children, or mother.

"EXPLANATION of our modern crime wave?" Nothing complicated about it, say Chicago policemen.

They mention Wilfred J. Winters, 21 years old; Margaret Martin, 18, and Catherine Stadler, 19, friends all their lives. After young Winters had shot both girls to death and killed himself in his automobile, the police held up two empty moonshine whisky bottles, saying, "There's your explanation."

SENATOR BORAH says he will keep after both political parties and make them put a plank on prohibition in their platforms.

They might include a plank on young Mr. Winters and the inability of government to keep whisky away from him. Prohibition in the Constitution does not mean much, unless you can have it in the automobile also.

THE American Federation of Labor favors a five-day week, giving the worker two days out of seven.

Russia's Government, exercising all powers, establishes a seven-hour workday, a long step from the serf slavery of old Russia.

Henry Ford, who started the five-day week, wants men to have one day in which to spend what they earn in five days. Spending is as important to the country as earning, says Ford.

THE value to workers of a seven-hour day, or five-day week, depends on what they do with the extra day or hour of freedom.

If they read and think more, they will go ahead. If not, they will stay in the same place, but in any case, the greater leisure will improve their health. That will make a better next generation, inclined to thought.

ROBERT A. MILLIKAN, brilliant scientist of California institute of Technology, tells students that science "will free human slaves," meaning, presumably, that science will free men from hard labor.

Pray that it may not happen too soon. Free men today from the necessity that drives them, and 99 in 100 would become worthless. If you doubt it, contemplate those that inherit wealth, in so-called society.

THE American Public Health Association, gathered at Cleveland, is told that today's greatest cause of death is heart disease. And repeated infections such as "common colds," to which so little attention is paid, cause heart disease. The trouble starts often in childhood, with childhood's diseases, all of which might be avoided. This should interest parents of the dark ages type who think "the children might as well have measles and such little things first as last and get them over with."

BASIL STEWART, solemn and British, predicts a great war, to begin in May, 1928, ending in 1936.

Fortunately, he bases his prediction on "the symbolism of the great pyramid" and "prophetic forecasts of the Bible." When the Bible was written modern war methods were unknown, and forecasts of that period could not apply to airplane, TNT and gas bomb warfare.

Woman Pays $1 Fine For Punishing 19-Year-Old Daughter

Hammond, Ind., Oct. 20—A 19-year-old flapepr is too old to be spanked—even by her mother.

Thus ruled Judge John Sullivan in city court here when he fined Mrs. Catherine Latzko of Whiting, $1 and costs, for administering an old-fashioned spanking to her daughter, Emma.

The girl had sworn out a warrant, charging assault and battery, against her mother.

STEVENS MAY APPEAL CASE

Indicates Action in Higher Court; Tibbals Taken to Penitentiary

A. W. Tibbals, former local business man, yesterday afternoon began his five-year term in the state penitentiary in accordance with sentence fixed Tuesday morning by Judge Scofield of the court of common pleas.

Tibbals, who entered a plea of guilty to an indictment charging him with forgery, was taken to the state prison by Sheriff James A. Deal.

The sheriff had also intended to remove Howard A. Stevens to the penitentiary at the same time but this plan was changed when it was indicated that steps might be taken to carry Stevens' case to the court of appeals. He was found guilty last week following trial on an embezzlement charge.

No Decision Reached

J. W. Jacoby, attorney for Stevens, stated today that no decision had been made regarding plans for seeking a new trial. Motion made by Stevens for another hearing in the common pleas court was over-ruled by Judge Scofield. The next step, should further proceedings be decided upon, would be filing of a petition-in-error in the court of appeals.

In the event that no more to take the case to the higher court is made today, Stevens will be taken to the penitentiary Friday morning, Sheriff Deal said today.

Stevens' sentence was fixed at three years.

Penitentiary officials will not assign Tibbals to his duties there for several days. They indicated, however, that he would probably be given work as an electrician because of his training along that line. He was formerly engaged in the electrical business here.

DANCER FALLS FROM 12TH FLOOR TO DEATH

Girl Faints While Taking Setting Up Exercises Near Window

New York, Oct. 20—Earl Johnson of Kansas City was reported enroute to New York today to arrange plans for the funeral of his 18-year-old daughter, Jane, a dancer, who was killed yesterday when she fell from the window of an apartment she occupied with her mother on the twelfth floor of the Hotel Claridge.

Miss Johnson's body, attired in green silk pajamas and slippers, landed on a shed in the rear of the hotel.

Her mother, Mrs. Ethel Johnson, said her daughter had fainted while taking her setting-up exercises near a window and fell into the courtyard. Mrs. Johnson was in the bathroom at the time.

The body was removed to Campbell's funeral Parlors.

Miss Johnson came here three years ago. She had appeared in musical comedies and of late had been employed as a ballet dancer by a motion picture theater at $300 a week.

WOMEN URGED TO AID CHILD DELINQUENTS

Miss Belle Greve, State Welfare Worker, Addresses Conservation League Convention

MAYOR WELCOMES GROUP

Eighth Annual State Meeting of Organization Opens at Hotel Harding

Urging the women to get in closer touch with what is going on in their county by way of taking care of juvenile wards of the courts and voicing a plea for the prevention of delinquency, Miss Belle Greve, of the state welfare department presented some startling figures to women from all over the state gathered in the ballroom at Hotel Harding for the opening session of the eighth annual convention of the Child Conservation League, yesterday afternoon.

The guests were formally welcomed by Mayor Hazen and Mrs. O. C. Alspach, president of the Marion Circle, and the response was made by Mrs. L. L. Montei, president of the Columbus Circles and former member of the Marion Circle. Mrs. C. C. Gross, Columbus, is president of the state organization and will preside for the three-day session.

Miss Janet Trott sang two delightful numbers, "Sing, Smile and Slumber," Gonod and "A Maiden's Song," Helmund, accompanied at the piano by Miss Kathleen Beicher.

Text of Sadness

"Groups like this play a vital part in the work of giving the right foundation and inheritance to childhood," Miss Greve said. "I have lots of hope in such organizations as the Child Conservation League because you women have the welfare of childhood at heart. The time has come when education means more than reading, writing and arithmetic, it means the building of life and character."

Miss Greve said that about 1,700 children had been kept in jails or parts of jails in Ohio last year. Twenty-three counties in the state have detention homes or care for their delinquent children on the detention home plan, she pointed out. She urged the keeping together of families in their own homes instead of placing them in homes or institutions and pointed out the necessity of the distribution of all the money appropriated for mothers' pensions throughout the state. Miss Greve's figures showed there had been 1,500 children sent to the two state industrial schools last year and 35,000 brought into juvenile court on some

WOMAN TO TESTIFY IN HER OWN BEHALF

Mrs. Knapp Target of Sensational Charges Made by Secretary

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 20—Because of startling charges hurled at her from the witness stand in the investigation of the administration of the $1,200,000 census fund, Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, former secretary of state, is expected to testify in her own defense.

Alexander Otis, counsel for Mrs. Knapp, intimated today that in view of the sensational testimony given by Mrs. Luella V. Ninde, personal secretary to Mrs. Knapp, virtually the only course left open for Mrs. Knapp was to come to Albany and defend herself from the witness stand.

Mrs. Ninde testified that Mrs. Knapp, without her knowledge or authority, signed Mrs. Ninde's name to two census salary checks totalling $250, and that she signed Mrs. Ninde's name to alleged bogus expense accounts totalling $3,000 and then pocketed the money.

Not only did Mrs. Ninde charge that Mrs. Knapp endorsed pay checks and then kept the money, but she identified the endorsement of checks made payable to Mrs. Knapp's relatives as the handwriting of Mrs. Knapp.

On the heels of the charges hurled at Mrs. Knapp by Mrs. Ninde, came renewed reports at the capitol today that Randall J. Leboeuf, who is conducting the investigation, would recommend a grand jury investigation. In the charges made against Mrs. Knapp by the cities census committee it was alleged that she had wasted $200,000 of the census fund.

FRENCHMEN DELAYED AT PELOTAS, BRAZIL

Pelotas, Brazil, Oct. 20—Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Le Brix, who are making a flight from Le Bourget to Buenos Aires, hopped off for the Argentine capital at 9:40 o'clock. They had been compelled by stormy weather to land here yesterday while enroute from Rio Janeiro to Buenos Aires.

FALL AND SINCLAIR AT THEIR OIL TRIAL

Albert B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, charged by the prosecution for the government with receiving a bribe of $256,000 for turning over Teapot Dome naval oil reserve to Harry F. Sinclair, has aged considerably since the last cases against him, Washington reporters observe. Top photo shows, left to right: William E. Leahy, Fall's attorney; Albert B. Fall and Mrs. Fall. Lower photo shows Martin Littleton, attorney for Sinclair; Sinclair's mother, and Harry F. Sinclair, snapped as they left court.

FALL ORDERED SILENCE, CLAIM

Assistant Secretary of Interior Finney Testifies at Oil Trial

Washington, Oct. 20—The Fall-Sinclair defense got in its first licks today in efforts to clear Ex-Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall of charges of leasing "fraudulently and secretly" the Teapot Naval Oil Reserve to Harry F. Sinclair.

The attempt was made through cross examination testimony of E. C. Finney, assistant secretary of interior. Finney had testified that he knew nothing of the lease until after it had been executed by Fall, and that Fall gave orders that no information on the lease should be given out.

Finney was turned over to George P. Hoover, Sinclair counsel, after brief direct examination by Owen J. Roberts of the government staff.

Jury Grows Restless

Before today's session opened Fall declared that he had not decided definitely whether he would take the stand in his own defense. He said yesterday that he would go on the stand and "explain a lot of things that haven't been explained." He did not testify in the Fall-Doheny conspiracy trial and his lawyers do not want him to take the stand here.

Finney's testimony started off with a drab recital on general leasing laws, and the jury became restless. They paid but scant attention to Hoover and Finney and seemed more intent in watching the two defendants. Fall, smiling, engaged for a time in an animated conversation with his lawyers. He appeared in better spirits

CLAIM KENT DEALER WAS BEATEN BY WIFE

Harris Denies Statement Issued by Mayor; Obtained from Roomer

Kent, Oct. 20—A statement to the effect that Alfred Harris, Kent furniture dealer, who claims he was kidnaped and flogged by a band of masked men, Aug. 31, was in reality beaten by his wife, in his own home, had been made public here today.

Mayor W. J. Harves, who issued the statement, said it had been obtained from John Foray, who formerly lived at the Harris home and who claims that Harris confessed to him.

Harris, when told of the story, declared there was no truth in it. He contends that he was beaten by eight men who tried to take from him a petition which he was circulating at that time requesting Governor Donahey to investigate the Kent Police Department.

GOV. VIC DONAHEY GOES BACK HOME

Columbus, Oct. 20—Visiting the scenes of his boyhood, Gov. Vic Donahey today attended a "homecoming" at the village of West Chester, Tuscarawas County, where he was born 54 years ago.

Standing under a walnut tree which he planted 45 years ago, the governor greeted his old neighbors. The occasion, also, celebrated the completion of a new state highway through that village.

Although the village had about 500 inhabitants when Vic was one of its youthful residents, it now has only 90 citizens.

ENFORCEMENT GROUP SEEEKING SHOWDOWN

Leading Politicians of Both Major Parties To Be Queried

New York, Oct. 20—A nation-wide movement, sponsored by the National Committee for Law Enforcement, for a "showdown" on the question of enforcing the prohibition law in America, will be launched next month at a series of meetings that will be held from coast to coast.

Leading politicians of both parties, including presidential aspirants, are to be asked to aid in enforcing the eighteenth amendment by plainly stating their position with respect to it. Any effort to dodge the issue will be regarded as opposition, leaders in the movement asserted today.

The New York State Women's Committee for Law Enforcement, in cooperation with the national committee, will hold its meetings on Nov. 12 and 13th. There will be services in the churches, gatherings in private homes and meetings in public halls. Similar meetings will be held in other states on Nov. 13 so that the whole thing will work into one big national movement.

The National Committee for Law Enforcement, it was stated, has nine affiliated national organizations of women with a total membership of 10,000,000.

ALLEGED SLAYER'S CASE WILL GO TO JURY TODAY

Dayton, Oct. 20—The case of Roy Freeman, negro, on trial for the murder of Motorcycle Policeman William C. Horn, on Sunday, Sept. 18, probably will rest with a jury late this afternoon, following the completion of arguments, scheduled to begin this afternoon. All evidence in the case was expected to be completed by noon.

Freeman, himself and one or two other witnesses were expected to be the only persons to testify for the defense. Two negroes are members of the jury which will decide Freeman's fate.

FESS SPANKED BY COOLIDGE; WILL NOT RUN

Ohio Senator "Called Down" by President for "Draft" Talk

EXECUTIVE DISPLEASED

Even Hints That Solon Might Be Furthering Own Ambitions

Washington, Oct. 20 — President Coolidge administered a verbal spanking today to those of his ardent supporters who have refused to accept at its face value his famous "I do not choose to run" announcement.

It was delivered through Sen. Simeon Fess, Republican, of Ohio, who has been one of the most vocal of the Coolidge partisans in whipping up sentiment to have the next Republican national convention draft the president.

After a conference with Mr. Coolidge at the White House this morning Fess emerged from the presidential office and said:

"I've been called down."

Refers to Speeches

Fess had reference to the speeches he has been making in various parts of the country in which he has assured audiences that Mr. Coolidge will be a candidate despite his not choosing to run.

"If the president has his own way," said the Ohio senator, "he will not be nominated."

"Does that mean he is opposed to being drafted?" the administration spokesman was asked.

"If you had heard what the president said you would have so interpreted it," was the reply.

Coolidge Displeased

"The president was displeased with some of my speeches," continued the Ohioan. "He was afraid that people might get the impression that I was speaking for him. He even ventured the thought that I might be talking the way I have been in order to help my own political fortunes in Ohio. I told him I never pretended to be talking for him, nor, in fact, for anybody except myself, and that I did not believe people thought I was representing his views. Nor was I talking to help myself. But he was displeased."

Despite his "call down," Senator Fess declared he still believed Mr. Coolidge would be the nominee of the convention. The president's refusal to stand, he believes, points inevitably to a deadlock in the convention among the supporters of other candidacies, and that deadlock, he predicted, will result in the convention's unanimously drafting the present occupant of the White House.

"I cannot see," said Fess, "how any man, unless it be for reasons of health, can refuse to accept a nomination when it is tendered him as the unanimous demand of his party."

The Ohio senator admitted there is some anti-Coolidge sentiment among the western farm leaders, but he deprecated the extent and importance of this.

"I know in Ohio," he said, "it would be impossible to elect an anti-Coolidge delegation to the next Republican convention."

NATURE APPLIES EARL'S MAKEUP

Broadway Will Hardly Know Carroll When He Reaches New York

Atlanta, Oct. 20—The makeup box of nature with its glowing reds and hardy tans will have removed from the face of Earl Carroll all traces of Broadway when he next sets foot in the roaring forties.

Broadway should have seen Carroll Wednesday morning as he waited at the honor farm of the U. S. Penitentiary for word to arrive that his parole papers had reached "the big house" and he was to begin his journey back to freedom.

Broadway wouldn't have known him. Broadway wouldn't even have suspected him. He was attired in a suit of denim that had seen hard usage. His shoes were large and thick and heavy and had signs of contact with the red clay soil of Georgia.

In Fine Shape

"I guess," said Warden Snook today, "that Carroll's in the best physical and mental shape he's been in since he was discharged from the army. Carroll will be freed today."

After serving four months in Atlanta Penitentiary on a perjury charge, the producer will begin his first lap in the bright lights on Broadway in a loaded produce truck.

He will be transported from the honor farm, where he has been serving as librarian, to the warden's office in the penitentiary, proper a distance of 10 miles. The produce truck is the prison's only official means of transportation at the farm.

PENNSYLVANIA HIT BY HEAVY RAINS

Rivers and Creeks in Eastern Part of State Overflow Banks

Philadelphia, Oct. 20—Swollen by heavy rains during the last four days, rivers and creeks throughout the eastern part of this state have overflowed their banks, causing thousands of dollars damage to manufacturing plants and farms.

The weatherman predicts the rain will halt Friday, but forecasts rain, cloudy and continued cold weather for today.

Darby and Cobbs creeks were turned into swirling streams by the continued rains, overflowing lowlands in the East-week-ay section of this city. Rowboats are being used to cross streets where scores of homes are inundated by water four and five feet deep. Four square miles are affected in this area.

In Manayunk the Schuylkill River has flooded mills and dwellings along its banks.

LINDSEY, RABBI DEBATE COMPANIONATE MARRIAGE

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 20—The first of the series of debates on "companionate marriage" between Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver and Rabbi Louis L. Newman of San Francisco was still a hot topic of discussion here today following the advancing of the views of both men last night.

CONGRESSMAN LA GUARDIA CONTINUING AIR FLIGHT

Cleveland, Oct. 20—F. H. La Guardia, of New York, hopped off from Brook Park Airport here at 10:15 a. m. today continuing his flight to New York from Chicago. La Guardia was forced to put in at Brook Park Tuesday, on account of rough weather.

VOTERS TO REGISTER FRIDAY, SATURDAY

Precinct Stations To Be Open from 8 to 2 and 4 to 9 O'Clock

Final arrangements were completed today by the Marion County Board of Elections for registration of voters Friday and Saturday, which will be the only registration days preceding election in November, according to present plans of the board.

Registration will take place at all of the city's voting precincts between 8 and 2 o'clock and 4 and 9 o'clock, both Friday and Saturday. Registration is not required in precincts outside the city.

All new voters and those who have moved from one precinct to another will be required to register in order to qualify for casting their ballots in November.

Voters who will be out of the city on the regular registration days have been granted the privilege of registering in advance at the board of elections office. The time allowed for registration of absentees expired today.

Nine absent voters' ballots have been cast thus far, by persons who will be away from home on election day, records at the board's office showed today. All of those were cast by persons residing in the city of Marion. In addition, five residents of precincts outside the city have filed applications for the right to cast absent voters' ballots. Voting supplies have not been received for the outside precincts and the applications will be held on file until printers deliver the ballots.

POSTPONEMENT SEEN

Weather May Delay Mrs. Grayson's Attempt Until Spring

Old Orchard, Me., Oct. 20—The hop-off of Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson's amphibian plane, "The Dawn," to Copenhagen, Denmark, was again postponed for at least 24 hours today because of continued adverse winds and fog.

Indications were that unless a radical change in the weather occurred before Sunday, the flight would be definitely postponed until next spring. Such an announcement was expected to follow the arrival here today of Igor Sikorsky, builder and designer of the plane.

Marion Steam Shovel Co. to Use Motion Pictures of Its Plant and Products to Increase Foreign Sales

AS a part of its program to increase sales in foreign countries, which is expected to result in substantial expansion of the company's overseas trade, the Marion Steam Shovel Co. will equip its export sales organization with motion pictures to be used in promotion and publicity work.

Preparation of the pictures, which will include views of practically every department of the local factory and offices and also scenes showing various models of Marion shovels in actual operation, was started at the plant yesterday by C. C. Runey, of Cincinnati, who makes a specialty of movie advertising for industrial and business concerns.

Filming Scenes

Runey is here in company with one of his assistant cameramen and expects to complete filming scenes at the factory within a few days. After concluding his work here he will visit places where shovels made by the company are in operation to take the final pictures.

In all there will be approximately 2,000 feet of film, giving a complete picturization of the local factory and its products.

It is expected that the cameramen will finish their work in about 10 days and that the film will be ready for use by the company's export sales department a few weeks later.

To Enlarge Foreign Force

In connection with announcement of plans for the new modern feature of sales promotion work used for the first time by the local company, it was stated that steps are being taken to enlarge the export organization for the purpose of effecting a substantial increase in sales in foreign countries.

The main office of the export department has been established in New York City with Morris Caldwell as manager. Mr. Caldwell, who will have full charge of this branch of the company's business, is especially qualified by experience and training for foreign trade promotion, it was stated today.

Mr. Caldwell was appointed export sales manager about two

Feminists Set Great Store in Mrs. McCormick's Candidacy

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press-Star Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20—There's this to be said for women in politics—

They're sincere.

The men's ideal political leader is often, in reality, a convictionless cowardly dub, who simply knows all the cheap tricks of his business inside out.

MRS. M. McCORMICK

When women talk about the qualities of political leadership, they mean brains and courage and genuine public spirit.

The women leaders' weakness is on the practical side. They mostly lack experience. The men's bosses flim-flam the women's managers, whom they can't hold a candle to in intelligence, fully half the time, by virtue solely of a longer course of training at the game, and by cheating, too, without getting caught at it, as likely as not.

NOW have the women any leader at all who, while measuring up to their standard, has it in her makeup to break even with the men's crowd?—not to bluff and renege and equivocate like the others, but to score something like 50-50, by honest methods, against the system a square-shooter in politics must lack?

Ask this question at any of the women's political headquarters in Washington, and the chances are—regardless of partisanship—that they'll answer:

"We think we have at least one—Mrs. Medill McCormick of Illinois."

THE women are very proud of Mrs. Nellie T. Ross' record as governor of Wyoming, but—

1. Wyoming's considered a little out of the way, and

2. There's no getting away from the feminists' conviction that a woman's succession to an office her husband (generally her late husband) has held doesn't make the same political impression as her election indisputably as an exclusive tribute to herself.

About "Ma" Ferguson's term in Texas, it's agreed, the less said the better. The women's managers make allowances for "Ma," as a victim of circumstances, but they don't point to her administration with pride.

GREAT store's set by Congresswoman Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, for having been elected to the house of representatives "in her own right," so to speak.

Judge Florence Allen of Ohio goes into the same classification.

Praise of Representatives Florence P. Kahn, California, and Edith Nourse Rogers, Massachusetts, always is qualified by mention of the fact that they had congressional husbands before them—not a bit disparagingly—only everybody knows it's so. (Maybe it will wear off since both have been reelected "on their own.")

As for the coming session's new woman representative—Mrs. Kate G. Langley of Kentucky—we shall see. Her husband, too, was a congressman.

Life actually prolonged!

By keeping the system cleansed of poisons

MEN of science are constantly working on a problem vital to the human race—longevity! They find that one of the surest ways to increase your span of life is to keep the intestines cleansed of poisons due to wrong habits of living and eating and to delayed elimination. They find everybody in danger of this condition—everybody suffering from it at times.

Many of our foremost scientists recommend the use of Nujol as a harmless corrective and preventive. For Nujol does both things for you because it has the peculiar quality of not being absorbed by the system at all. But Nujol does absorb body poisons. Carries them away right out of the system. Corrects internal difficulties. If taken faithfully Nujol makes impossible delayed elimination and the absorption of poisons into the blood. Thus it acts as a preventive. Your whole system will benefit if you learn to use Nujol whenever you feel the need of it. Nujol is so safe that babies, old people, and sick people can take it too. Ask your doctor about it. He'll tell you it can't hurt you. It's not habit-forming, contains no drugs or medicine. Perfected by the Chemical Products Division of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

PHILOSOPHY URGED AS UNIVERSITY STUDY

Ohio Professor Says Subject Teaches Students True Sense of Values

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, Oct. 19—"Students who find acquiring of an education difficult, should study philosophy," is the statement made by Professor Joseph A. Leighton, head of the department of philosophy at Ohio State University.

"The study of this subject," declares Prof. Leighton, "may seem difficult to the student at college or in the lower books, but it will enable him to adjust himself by finding a true sense of values.

The Ohio State professor believes that when a student enters high school or a university, he is faced with such a complexity of problems that he needs something to aid him. By taking philosophy, it will help him straighten matters out, according to Dr. Leighton.

"Philosophy is practical," the professor maintains, "not because it furnishes short cuts, but because all aspects of the subject interplay and bear on one another.

"It all comes back to the two central and vital questions: 'What is man?' and 'What is nature?' and their relations to each other."

Dr. Leighton is the head of one of the best courses in philosophy in the country. Students come from all over the world to study for a degree of doctor of philosophy under the Ohio State professor.

PLANS SCHOOL OF FIRST AID

Marion County Chapter, Red Cross, Completes Arrangements for Class

Officials of Marion County Chapter of the Red Cross have completed arrangements for the school of first aid instruction which is to be held here for three days, beginning Oct. 23, in charge of a corps of experts representing the national Red Cross organization. The instructors will come here in the American Red Cross First Aid car which is to make a tour of this section of the country.

The car is to travel over the lines of the Erie railroad.

Special efforts will be made by the Red Cross staff while here to give group instructions to police and firemen, schools, shopmen, railroad employes and the general public. The instruction will be free.

Part of Campaign

The tour is planned as a part of the Red Cross campaign for reducing the country's annual loss of life from accidents. The corps of instructors will give lectures and demonstrations dealing with all modern first aid methods.

Since 1923 this car has traveled more than 41,800 miles, Red Cross records how. It has stopped in approximately 471 cities and towns where group instructions in first aid have been given more than 521,700 persons.

"It is easy to save a life if you know how," the Red Cross experts declare. "The precious seconds between the time an accident occurs and the time the doctors arrives often mean life or death to the victim."

It is to enable persons at the scene of an accident to make the most of the first chances for life-saving that the Red Cross is carrying on its special instruction campaign.

City Council Agrees With Realty Board in Belief Sewer Issue Is Doomed

With One Exception Members Are Convinced That Project Is Too Large for Single Undertaking and Should Be Built in Two Sections

Members of city council today joined with members of the Marion Real Estate Board in the belief that the $800,000 storm water sewer bond issue which will be considered by Marion voters at the election next month will be defeated.

With the exception of one member, Charles Schmidt, councilman from the fourth ward, who thought the measure had a chance, all of the members interviewed expressed the opinion that the measure was doomed, all were also of the opinion that an educational campaign started several months ago, would have helped the measure.

That the measure still has a chance of passing is the opinion of Charles Schmidt, the only councilman interviewed who has hopes of its survival. The lack of an educational campaign which would have made clear to the people the purpose of the issue and what it would accomplish, are declared by the councilman responsible for the bad light in which the measure has fallen.

Not Practical, Claim

There still is time to save the measure, Mr. Schmidt said, if it is possible to start an intensive campaign of education at the present time. This it is declared would not be practical since there has been no definite plans prepared, due to a lack of money with which to employ a sewer expert, which, in the opinion of the city engineer, should be done, when the spending of such money is involved.

"Not a chance in the world" was the statement of E. M. Murphy, president of council, when asked his opinion as to the chances of the measure passing. There is too much money involved for voters to approve such a measure. They have received only a meager knowledge of what is to be done with the money.

A campaign of education, explaining the purpose of the issue, Mr. Murphy believes, would have done much to help the measure. The general sentiment of all persons that he has talked to, is against the measure, President Murphy said.

Sees Failure

Councilman R. E. Prettyman of the third ward, while refusing to go into detail on the matter said that in his opinion, the measure would not carry. In explaining his reluctance to go into detail, Mr. Prettyman said he was preparing some matter on the issue which he intended to present to council next Monday night, and would rather not make any further statement at this time.

Councilman Tom Mead, of the second ward also was firm in his conviction that the measure would fail. A check of the voters in his ward, he said, did not reveal one voter who intended to support the measure at the election next month. The spending of too much money with not enough explanation of what was to be done with it, has put the measure in a very bad light with the voters of the second ward, Mr. Mead said.

While all councilmen expressed the belief that a campaign of education would have helped save the measure, just how this should have been done is the problem, inasmuch as there is no money with which to employ a sewer engineer to conduct the survey and make the plans. It is generally admitted that City Engineer Tom S. Cathers, with his other duties, would not have time in which to do the work.

In explaining his position in the matter, the city engineer said today that he did not feel that he was to blame for lack of the educational campaign.

Cather's Statement

"I have been working nights and Sundays in getting out plans and specifications for work that is to be done, and have not had time to make the survey or plans for the sewer project. Further than this, I believe that, with the spending of $800,000 it would be policy to obtain a man who has made a study of that particular branch of engineering in order that the citizens might receive the very best that it is possible for the money expended."

It is the belief of city officials that an attempt to build but one of the sewers at the present time and the other at a later date, as suggested at the meeting of members of the Marion Real Estate Board and City Engineer Tom S. Cathers held Monday night, is not feasible, not for the reason that the plan is not practical, but for the reason that they do not believe voters in that end of the city in which the sewer would not be built, would not support the measure.

It is possible however, that by building the sewer on the east side of the city and diverting the water into the Quaqua ditch instead of the Columbia-st and Silver-st sewers, the flow could be reduced enough in the sewers on the west side, to relieve the flooded conditions in that territory, accomplishing the same purpose, in a large measure at least, as the building of a new sewer, with the expenditure of less than one half the money.

good oil to win such friends

EVERY day you'll see the finest cars rolling up to stations that show the Pennzoil sign. Many are cars that have been there often before. Their owners never think of buying a quart of oil or refilling their crankcases anywhere else, because they are unwilling to trust their expensive motors to inferior lubrication.

Once they know what a difference Pennzoil makes in the life of a motor, in its smooth operation, increased power, greater mileage—they're Pennzoil's friends for life.

The Pennzoil dealer sells you Pennzoil—the cream of Pennsylvania crude with its wonderful heat-resisting body, brought to perfection by the exclusive Pennzoil process. It protects your motor for twice as many miles as does ordinary oil—good for more than 1000 miles without change.

Drive in where you see the Pennzoil sign. The service of the Pennzoil dealer and the fine quality of oil he gives you will make you, too, a fast friend of Pennzoil.

Alabama Attorney General Says Organization In Hands of Lawless Leaders

Montgomery, Ala., Oct. 20—Attorney General Charles C. McCall, who directed the prosecution of all the flogging cases in Alabama, conducted grand jury investigations into flogging cases involving members of the Ku Klux Klan, and obtained convictions on kidnaping and assault charges of Klan members, today resigned as a member of the Ku Klux Klan of Alabama.

Recently Attorney General McCall obtained 102 indictments, involving 27 klan members, including Capt. Ira B. Thompson, exalted cyclops of the Luverne, Ala., klavern.

All during this time McCall was a klan member. In tendering his resignation, he declared that the klan in Alabama was in the hands of lawless leadership and was not living up to the principles of the organization.

"I have become convinced that it is not the purpose or intent of its leaders to aid the duly constituted officers of the law in their efforts to enforce the criminal laws where crimes are committed by its members," he added. "Many of these leaders, in my judgment, are responsible for the wave of lashings and floggings which have taken place in this state and many members of the klan are placed in fear of drastic action by its present state rulers if they tell the truth in courts.

"For my part I regard my oath as an officer of the law superior to any private or fraternal obligation I can take and I do not feel that I should follow longer behind the banner and under the leadership of those leaders in their religious, political and criminal connivings, who are placing themselves at war with constituted authorities."

TRAINMEN KILLED

Washout Crash of Lackawanna Passenger Train Injures Others

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 20—Several trainmen injured in a washout crash of a Lackawanna passenger train last night near Hallstead, Pa., were brought here early today for treatment. Milton Esterbrook, the engineer, and Luke Monroe, the fireman, both of Elmira, N. Y., were killed when the locomotive plunged down a 15-foot embankment. No passengers were injured seriously although many were shaken up by the crash.

An official statement by railroad officials said that the tracks, undermined by heavy rains, sank beneath the engine and four express cars. The mail car left the tracks, but did not plunge down the embankment. The injured employes were in the express cars.

The train was No. 28, a local bound from Binghampton to New York. Hallstead is 43 miles from Scranton.

$50,000 SUIT HEARING OPENS

Courtroom Crowded When Case Against Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Lawrence Comes Up

Hearing of a suit for $50,000 brought by Edward Laucher against his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Lawrence, opened in the court of common pleas this morning before a crowd of spectators which filled the seating capacity of the courtroom to overflowing.

Approximately 70 witnesses have been subpoenaed and it is expected that the hearing will last at least two days. Laucher, a farmer residing north of this city, charges that Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence alienated his wife's affections, causing her to leave him. Mrs. Laucher's parents reside on E. Center-st.

A divorce suit brought by Mrs. Laucher is now pending in the court of appeals, the common pleas court having refused to grant a decree.

In his petition, asking judgment for $50,000, Laucher relates that he and Mrs. Laucher were married on Feb. 21, 1917, and have two children, Martha Virginia and Richard Edward.

Charges Interference

They lived happily until during the second year of their married life, when his wife's parents began to interfere, Laucher alleges. He charges that Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence made a practice of coming to his home and taking his wife and children away for long periods of time, despite his protests.

Finally, in July, 1925, he states, they induced Mrs. Laucher to leave him and since that time she and the two children have been living at the Lawrence home.

The greater part of the morning court session was taken up with selection of a jury, many prospective jurors being dismissed by both sides.

Laucher's attorneys are Carhart & Warner of this city and Stickel & Cessna of Kenton, and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence are represented by Mouser, Young & Mouser, local law firm.

Named Receiver

George Estlack was appointed receiver for Schurlie & Crouso, 125½ S. Main-st, today, following filing of a petition in the court of common pleas by Frederick J. Schurlie, in which he asked dissolution of the partnership and liquidation of the business.

The partnership, consisting of Schurlie and William N. Crouso, has been engaged in a painting and wall paper business since 1917.

On Aug. 28, Schurlie relates in his petition, he became ill and since that time has been unable to attend to his interest in the business, which was left solely in charge of Crouso. The petition alleges that Crouso has been wasteful and by neglectful and inefficient management has jeopardized the business.

Schurlie asked for a receiver to complete contracts now pending, dispose of the partnership assets and divide the proceeds after paying debts.

The petition was filed through Homer E. Johnson, local attorney. The receiver's bond was fixed at $2,000.

ALL OF COUNTY NOW IN AREA

Corn Borer Regulations Are Extended, Chairman of Committee Says

All of Marion County is now included in the area affected by the European Corn Borer regulations according to W. H. Uncapher, chairman of the Marion County Corn Borer Committee. According to regulations of corn borer control officials no corn land in this area can be planted in wheat without plowing in the corn stalks and more than six inches high.

Several hundred dollars worth of farm machinery owned by the United States government will be loaned this fall to farmers of this county in their attempts to clean up corn fields and control the European corn borer, according to Uncapher.

The machinery, stubble pulverizers, with tractors and power take-off, is available, but the farmers who want it have to ask for it, L. H. Worthley, federal field administrator of corn borer control, at Toledo, and the agricultural college extension service of the Ohio State University, worked out a plan whereby farmers could make use of stubble beaters this fall.

Apply to Chairman

Applications for use of the beaters may be made through the county corn borer committee chairman, or county corn borer supervisor. The government will make no charge for the use of equipment, but these conditions apply:

Use beaters on ground to be sown to small grains; use only on corn stubble 10 inches or less in height; operator, oil and gas to be provided by the farmer; service and repairs to be provided by the government; if the stubble pulverizer does not do a complete job, the farmer will agree to do any additional work necessary to comply next spring with the state corn borer control regulations.

The aim of the government in offering the use of this equipment to farmers, federal officials explain, is, first, to be of service to farmers in fighting the corn borer, and, second, to determine the effectiveness of the stubble pulverizer when used under good conditions in the fall. All who accept the government's offer, accordingly, will be expected to report on the results they obtain.

months ago and established his headquarters in New York City on Oct. 1 after spending a month at the local offices and factory shaping up his organization and outlining his program of operations.

Although Marion steam shovels have been used in foreign countries in the past, no special sales campaign was ever inaugurated. It is expected that the organization now being shaped up by the new management will greatly increase the market in this field.

Familiar with Product

The fact that the foreign trade is familiar with the merits of the Marion factory product will prove of tremendous value to the export sales force, officials of the company state.

The campaign will be centered chiefly in South America, India, Japan, Australia, South Africa, Sweden and Russia, where Marion shovels have been in operation and where there is said to be almost unlimited opportunities for increased sales.

Although the motion pictures now being prepared are primarily intended for export promotion, it is probable that they will be used to some extent in connection with sales in this country, officials of the company state.

The pictures will be arranged so that they may be used for private showings in hotels or offices to one or more prospective buyers or projected on screens in auditoriums and assembly halls.

Although the Marion Steam Shovel Co. operates a branch plant in England, most of the shovels sold in the export sales campaign will be manufactured at the main factory in Marion, according to present plans.

FALL, SINCLAIR

than any day since the trial started.

Sinclair, mute, stern-faced, followed the proceedings closely.

The feeling between Roberts and Hoover which already has resulted in so many heated rows was not abated overnight and they again clashed frequently over testimony Hoover sought to worm out of Finney.

The defense won a point when Hoover drew from Finney an admission that it was the accepted policy of the interior department, under the leasing acts, to handle all naval oil reserve leases whenever applications for permits or patents were pending. Hoover got this in the record over the repeated objections of the government. It is the government's contention that the interior was without athority to make reserve leases.

"This question involves the good faith of Fall and I want to show that it was the policy of the interior to make these particular leases," he said.

Claims for 32,000 Acres

Marlin W. Littleton, chief Sinclair counsel, then entered the controversy.

There were claims for 32,000 acres in the Teapot Dome Reserve, and the charge has been made that there was fraud in taking up these claims before the government made a lease to Sinclair, he said.

"These claims had to be taken up before a lease was made and this transaction was provided for under the law".

The defense contends that one reason why Sinclair obtained the lease was because he had secured the claims.

Sinclair paid about $1,009,000 for all the claims in Teapot Dome.

Nettled by the government's objection to Finney amplifying his story on the interior's leasing policy, Fall leaned over to the newspaper table and pointed out portions of the law which he said authorized the department to negotiate leases on the reserves.

"Finney would back that up if they would let him," Fall said.

sort of a delinquency charge during the same period of time.

At the close of the afternoon session the guests were entertained at a "good fellowship" tea on the mezzanine floor. Mrs. Guy H. Hulse, vice president of the Marion circle, poured, assisted by Miss Miriam Hulse, Miss Florence Sweney, Miss Cleo Danner and Miss Jean McLean. Music for the tea was furnished by the Melody Maids, Miss Dorothy Zieg, Miss Elma Sage and Miss Anna Von Endt.

The convention dinner was served to about 60 delegates and guests last night in the dining room at the First Presbyterian Church. The invocation was spoken by Mrs. Addison Bain, this city, first president of the state organization, and Mrs. Clarence L. Rutherford entertained with a pleasing group of vocal numbers, "The Snowball Bush," Hazard, "The Chrysanthemum," Salter and Gretchaninoff's "Slumber Song." Her accompaniments were played by Mrs. Harry T. Williams.

The address of the evening was given by Mrs. Frank Sifritt who chose for her subject, "The Joy of Two Horizons." Mrs. Sifritt, who recently returned from a world tour told in a delightful way of the peoples, customs and manners of the countries which she visited. "People all over the world are very much alike," she said. "We are one big family, children of the Great Heavenly Father, all doing the best we can."

The ballroom at Hotel Harding, where all conventions sessions will be held, is attractively decorated with baskets of chrysanthemums and other fall flowers and baskets of garden flowers and fall foliage arranged a lovely decorative note for the tables at the convention banquet last night.

Morning Session

"The C. C. L. Mother," was the subject of the address given by Mrs. C. C. Gross, Columbus, state president, at this morning's session of the convention in the ballroom at Hotel Harding. An impressive feature of the session was the salute to the flag in charge of Dr. James W. McMurray and members of the honor guard at the Harding tomb. The flag was loaned through the courtesy of Commander Charles Wiley, of Cooper Post, 117, G. A. R. The morning session concluded with an automobile trip around the city ending at Marion Cemetery where Mrs. Gross placed a wreath at the tomb of President and Mrs. Harding. Mrs. Clarence L. Rutherford and Mrs. Eugene Moore sang "One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and "Lead Kindly Light," and prayer was offered by Rev. Earl L. Holliday, pastor of Emmanuel Baptist Church.

Mrs. Gross' talk was preceded by reports from the various presidents and delegates of the circles in the state, community singing and two vocal numbers by Miss Lavona Peacock.

Presents Contrast

Mrs. Gross presented an interesting contrast between the home of long ago and the home of the Child Conservation League Mother. "The C. C. L. mothers have learned and are putting into practice the belief that it is not enough to have ideal home conditions alone but that community conditions must be good and ideals high," she stated. The moral foundation stones are social purity, good habits, industry, self-control, truth, honesty and obedience. The right kind of obedience is a trained will, where the child or adult chooses to obey the law, thus exercising that precious quality of self-control.

"The physical foundation stones are recreation, courage, loyalty, justice, competition, courtesy and health. The real business of the child and youth is to get an education. Book learning is not enough. One must know how to apply the knowledge gained," Mrs. Gross urged financial training in children and also supervision of the leisure time of the children. She stressed the need of spiritual training and declared that many of the foundation stones in character building can be brought out through Bible stories.

This afternoon's session will conclude with the election of officers and will be followed by a convention banquet at 7 o'clock in the hotel ballroom. Mrs. Gross will preside as chairman and the address will be given by Dr. Jesse Swank, Dayton, superintendent of the Dayton District, West Ohio Conference, former pastor of Epworth M. E. Church, this city.

Mrs. Walter H. Ives, Columbus, economic chairman of the league, and Mrs. G. F. Miller educational chairman, Detroit, will be in charge of the Home Economics breakfast to be served at 7 o'clock Friday morning in the dining room at the hotel.

The convention will close with the business session Frida morning which will open at 9 o'clock. Reports of committees and the installation of officers will conclude the meeting.

The first Mrs. Smith has a daughter, six years old, according to her petition, while the second claims to have a nine-months-old daughter. Bonafide Swimmers of English Channel Challenge World

London, Oct. 20—The recent channel swimming hoax admitted by Dr. Dorothy Logan has spurred "bona fide" conquerors of the channel to attempt to shatter any possible doubts as to their ability.

A worldwide challenge was issued to men and women, singly or in flotillas, by Mrs. Ivy Gill of Sheffield, who swam the channel recently.

Mrs. Gill declared she was ready to "race the world across the channel at its widest point."

Miss Mercedes Gleitz, who also swam the channel, followed Dr. Logan's expose by immediately starting for France to do it all over again.

RAPS RAIL FAIR

Calls B. & O. Exhibition at Baltimore "Bunch of Junk."

Washington, Oct. 20—The Baltimore & Ohio's centenary "fair of the iron horse," at which a dozen railroads exhibited their newest locomotives, was described as an exhibition of a "bunch of junk" by Sen. Smith W. Brookhart, Iowa insurgent, today in an attack on modern railroad equipment.

Brookhart declared there wasn't a really modern locomotive exhibited at the fair, which demonstrated the development of railroading from the early wood-burning days down to the present. Brookhart maintained that all steam locomotives were "pieces of junk" and that railroads should adopt electric locomotives in order to reduce their operating expenses and bring a reduction in rates. About 1,250,000 people saw the fair, held near Baltimore.

Another reason why Mme. Rosika Schwimmer shouldn't be granted United States citizenship is that we have far too many of her kind, as it is.

Earl Carroll is reported to have said that he will stage a come-back, but it's a fairly safe guess that a bathtub will not be among the properties when he does his staging.

"The American drinker is not satisfied," says Christopher Morley, "unless he gets an explosion with every swallow." If the stories of some of our acquaintances may be taken at par, the American drinker has no occasion for complaint on that score in this day and age.

His Honor, Mayor Bill Hale Thompson, of Chicago, shows such prejudice against kings that it's a fair assumption that he must have held four of 'em at some time against somebody's aces.

The newly-elected leader of the Canadian Conservative party, R. B. Bennett, says what Canada needs is "a vigorous national conscience." Something like a twin to that would help one of Canada's neighbors mightily, and the two are so close that there's not even so much as a wire fence between 'em.

Haven't those who insist that Mr. Coolidge change his mind and run any spirit of compassion whatever? Can't they see the pangs of hunger depicted upon the faces of the boys with their lightning rods up?

Aimee Semple McPherson was severely burned while using an electrical apparatus to treat a cold, such being her injuries and the shock resulting therefrom that she has been prevented from conducting services at Angelus temple. Please do not smile. There's no kidnaping phase to this story. It's the real thing.

Ramsay MacDonald says that "men are not sheep, but they have two of the dominating characteristics. They are gregarious and they are easily frightened." It's easy to see how Ramsay might see mankind that way considering his long association with politicians.

The police of Paris are searching for the party or parties who stole the stomach of a concierge over there following an operation. Of course, the victim couldn't have the stomach replaced owing to its unhealthy condition, but being a man of some delicacy he naturally doesn't want his stomach to be handed about promiscuously among strangers.

Holding birth control responsible, the London county council has given out figures showing that there has been a decrease of children of school age in London of 30,298 in the last two years, those growing out of school age exceeding those growing into school age to that extent. Not so remarkable, considering conditions in London. People can not be expected to bring children into the world to face poverty and starvation.

In Local Industries.

In Monday's Star we read that the Huber company had reopened its plant with approximately 300 men after a shut-down of two weeks for inventory following a very successful business year. Yesterday we read that the sales of the products of the Marion Steam Shovel company were showing such a decidedly favorable trend as to necessitate an increase in factory operations which will give employment to 150 men on Fridays and a somewhat smaller force on Saturdays, the regular time at present of the full force being but four days.

It is never pleasing to a newspaper to note a decrease in employment in local industries, and, by the same token, it is always a matter of pleasure to a paper to record a swing in the other direction giving more hours of work or employment to more men.

Both of these institutions have long been numbered among the dependable industries of the city. In fact, for many years their products represented almost all our manufactures. As such they hold high place in local esteem, and hence it is a matter for general felicitation when their employes go back to work after even so short a term of unemployment as a two-week shut-down for inventory purposes or when there has been a cutting of hours of work owing to temporarily unfavorable business conditions in their lines.

Still Little Light on Bond Issue.

The meeting of a number of local realtors with City Engineer Cathers, a few evenings since, developed little in an informative way of the merit of the proposed $890,000 bond issue, to be submitted to the voters of the city next month, in support of which he spoke.

Aside from the fact that the city authorities have in mind a tentative plan to carry the storm water of the eastern section of the city into Ququa ditch, as suggested by Colonel George B. Christian in a recent article published in this newspaper, which we believe would be a very good one if it is demonstrated to be an engineering possibility, there was little, if anything, offered to justify the authorization of anything like the amount for which the city authorities ask.

It was frankly admitted by City Engineer Cathers that not only the cost of the proposed improvements was largely guesswork, but also that it hadn't yet been determined just where the proposed storm water trunk lines had best be run; that no adequate surveys or estimates had been made and that the entire plan was purely tentative, not only as to location but also as to the amounts to be expended on storm water lines, sanitary sewers and sewer corrections.

We would like very much to go into this matter more fully at this time, but refrain from so doing in fairness to the city authorities, for it has come to our knowledge that the city engineer has prepared an article for publication in the near future which will throw added light upon the subject. Possibly he may offer something in justification of authorization of the proposed bond issue. We sincerely hope that such is the case, for even though it may not convince the voters of the worthiness of the projects the city authorities have in mind, it may offer at least some excuse for their request for blanket instruction to expend $800,000 of the tax-payers' money.

Up to the present we have not come upon or heard of anything offered which will justify such an instruction. We have come upon in type some surprising proposals for the expenditure of large sums of the money of the citizenship in the past, but nothing the fellow of the astounding proposal of the present.

So far as the proposition has developed, nothing tangible has been offered. The city authorities say there should be more storm water drainage, that the sanitary sewer system should be extended and that there should be correction of all cases where sanitary sewers run into storm water sewers or storm water into sanitary, but they admit that no survey has been made nor any plans prepared owing to lack of funds. In regard to the possibility that the drainage of the eastern part of the city might render unnecessary further storm water protection to the western part, the city engineer refused to commit himself, but he roughly estimated the probable cost of such an improvement in the eastern part of the city at from $300,000 to $350,000.

As the proposal stands today it is reduced to this. We, the city authorities, want to make some extensions to the storm water and sanitary sewer systems of the city and to make some corrections in the systems as they already exist. We do not know just where we will make these extensions, just what they will be or what they will cost, but if you will give us the sum of $800,000 we will agree to spend it.

And we are frank to say that we believe they would.

Stage people over here will be inclined to feel that the Turkish actress arrested for dressing up in the national flag wasted a lot of material.

We have the word of the bureau of home economics that, whereas it took, on the average, five and seven-eighths yards of thirty-six inch material to make a dress for a woman in 1919, it now takes but four and a sixth yards. But where do they conceal the other three yards?

The Atlantic and Cuyamel Fruit companies have joined hands to enter the European fruit trade in competition with the United Fruit company, and a big commercial war is on. "Yes, we have no bananas today."

Mussolini has sponsored a decree eliminating all holidays in Italy save two—the celebrations of the anniversaries of the Fascist march on Rome, October 28, 1922, and the signing of the armistice with Austria, November 4, 1918, and they are to be celebrated on the Sundays falling closest to them—in order that there may be no cessation of industry. Think of the shock a decree like that over here would throw into our banker friends and official circles!

Delegates to the American Grocery Specialty Manufacturers' association in session in Atlantic City were told that the people of the United States spend "the staggering sum of $22,000,000,000 a year for food." Not so staggering, when one stops to consider that it means but fifty cents a day per capita.

Before expressing our opinion regarding the punishment which should be inflicted upon the Chicago man of thirty-two who has been arrested, charged with marrying and living with ten women, we would want to see them. We have never forgotten the remark of the late Mark Twain upon viewing the forty-seven wives of the late Brigham Young to the effect that the man who married them was a public benefactor and the one who lived with them was a hero.

Vagrant Verse.

GARDEN GRACE.

It has been said how Eve went lonely there
In Eden, that most perfect garden place;
And how she sometimes showed a wistful face
Among the flowers that did not need her care—
The bloom that did not droop or grow less fair,
That never knew the blight of bug or weed
To mar or mark its loveliness * * * Indeed
Perfection is a cruel thing to bear!
Had there been, now, some sickly flower or shrub
To tempt her idle hands to dig and grub,
There would have been, I think, less lure for her
In that soft murmur of the Whisperer;
She would have learned the garden grace—content;
And earth's first story would be different!

HUNGRY MOUTHS TO FEED!

Surface Glands Always Active.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

When you visit a store where tools and household fixtures are sold, you are interested to find what wonderful devices are made to add to the ease and convenience of living. It seems sometimes as if the end of invention must be near.

Did I ever tell you in this column about the report sent to congress by the commissioner of patents? Fifty years ago he gravely proposed that the bureau of patents be abolished, "because everything the mind of man can possibly think of has been invented."

We laugh at that prediction when we consider the inventions of the past half century. The electric light, the automobile and tractor, the telephone and radio, the aeroplane and a hundred other amazing discoveries have been given mankind during the last fifty years. And we have just begun!

Everything man has made can be improved. But how could we improve the body in which reside the soul and mind of man? It was perfect in the beginning. It continues to be regarded as a perfect creation.

No one part of the body is better adapted to the many demands made upon it than the covering material, the skin. Think of the functions of the skin:

It covers and protects the body, guarding it against weather and permitting man to live in any climate.

Not only does it keep wrong things from penetrating the body, but it helps to eliminate poison from the body. It helps the lungs, kidneys and intestines in their job of carrying away the waste generated by our activities.

When we witness the wearing out of an automobile top or the cover of a much used book, we realize that it is a wonderful material that can resist the demands made upon the skin. It can be pinched or twisted, folded and stretched—nothing happens. No matter how it is used or abused, it never fails to do its work.

To keep the skin soft and flexible and to protect it against moisture, there are certain glands which have been provided to supply a lard-like substance to lubricate the surface of the body. These are called the "sebaceous" or fat glands.

The other kind of glands—the sweat glands—carry away the waste-laden fluid of the skin. You will be surprised to learn that about three pints of fluid escape in this way, equal in quantity to six or seven glasses of water.

The evaporation of the perspiration cools the skin. This is Nature's way to make us comfortable in hot weather.

Your good looks depend to a large extent upon the appearance and condition of the skin. A perfect complexion is more important than perfect features. This you can not have without observing certain rules.

Absolute cleanliness of the skin is the first consideration. It is surprising how much effort is required to cleanse the skin. It can not be done by washing it in a dab or dash of water. It requires quantities of soap and water and elbow grease to do a good job.

A clean, well acting skin will help you to live long and to be happy while you live.

PIONEERS AND ADVENTURERS.

We are so glad as the rest of the world that Miss Ruth Elder and Captain Haldeman were rescued. We admired their pluck, especially Miss Elder's, because she was a woman. We wanted them to make a successful flight and a safe landing at Le Bourget. We grieve with the rest of the world over the loss of the many fliers of all nationalities who bravely attempted transoceanic flights this last summer and died in their failure.

So it is in no sense of criticism that we point out what we think is a justifiable differentiation between the fliers and the motives behind their flights.

We admire most of all among the transoceanic aviators Colonel Lindbergh, Commander Byrd and his companions, and Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger. It was no mere spirit of adventure which sent these men into the air, no mere desire for glory, publicity, or personal gain. Adventurers they were, of course, and we can believe they did not dislike the glory, or any other more material rewards that may have come to them. But their principal motive was something finer. They flew in the spirit of the pioneer, not of the gold rusher. Their thoughts were of their profession and of a contribution to their country and to civilization. Thought of self was secondary. The proof of their purpose lies in the way they have since conducted themselves. Not one has been spoiled or allowed himself to be exploited to his own advantage.

As much can not be said for some of the other fliers. From Miss Elder's backers comes the news that she will not talk unless she is paid for it. In another case a pilot flew for a moving picture press agent stunt. And the buffooneries of Mr. Levine, news for a time, long ago began to pall.

Adventurers make their contributions to progress. They search out new places, make new discoveries. But they do not lead. The pioneer is the true leader. He does not travel traceless; he blazes his trail that others may profit and follow. His courage is greater because it is supported by the desire to serve.—Chicago Tribune.

THE DRY DRIVE.

The Anti-Saloon league has drawn its plans for an aggressive campaign next year. It will have a fund of $1,750,000. All its state organizations will be in the fight. Every candidate for the senate and house will be scrutinized. The big drive will have for its objective the election of a bone dry to the presidency. For Smith, Reed, and Ritchie the shells will never cease to scream, the drumfire never pause.

There will be no attempt, however, to insert a law enforcement plank in the party platforms. This decision, we are told, is predicated on the theory that, by the adoption of the eighteenth amendment, "the American people have already settled the liquor question."

That may be good strategy. What of its sincerity? Do the dry leaders believe the liquor question is settled? Do they expect the American people to believe that they believe it? If the question is settled then why this vast fund and why this intensive campaign on a national scale that is to penetrate every congressional district?

It is patent, of course, that the question is not settled. If it were the dry leaders might all retire, with laurels festooning their brows, to well-earned leisure and serene self-contemplation. Or they might press on to some other grand reform. No such lovely twilight or noble crusade beckons them. There is no rest for the godly. They still march to battle because there is no other choice. If the Anti-Saloon league withdrew from politics prohibition would quickly be on the ropes.

They know it. Everybody knows it. Why not tell the truth about it? Why bluff?—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

DECAY OF HORSESHOES.

Back home a ringer or two and a leaner were the most one looked for in a long afternoon, and double ringers were as scarce as pat straight flushes in poker. Last week in Des Moines, a Mr. Harvey performed the feat of throwing thirteen consecutive double ringers. This is a record, and it might well be, since it is also a miracle.

A fellow who can't throw half a dozen doubles in a row might as well give up thinking of going to Florida at all. In one tournament there, the present world's champion threw twenty-eight doubles.

It is easy to see what is happening. The thing is becoming a deadly science, for which the contestant must study and go into training. In another year some one will invent a suit of clothes to play it in, and that will be the end of horseshoe pitching as a game. It will be a business, and Mr. Rickard will have to take it over and have the public fighting for pegside seats.—Detroit News.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Bristol red, sunshine yellow, Black Hills blue and some other colors are announced as new shades for men's suits. Why not? Why must man somberly clothe himself in drab and let woman get away with all the beauty in the world in her raiment? We are too much the creatures of habit—habit without a real purpose behind it. It might add to the harmless gaiety of our lives if he had the courage to wear brighter colors.

More good news from the figure makers. Crops for 1927 are reported better than for 1926. Corn is fair in the west and poor in the east. Wheat is good in part of the country and fair elsewhere. If somebody between the farmer and the city dinner table doesn't make too much money, we may have lower food prices. As it is, food prices are lower than they were a few years ago. In the midst of much to criticise let's take time to be grateful for a thing now and then.

Sappodil is a new word and a good one. It is a combination of sap and daffodil. A sap is a fool or nearly a fool. A sap who is pleasant and agreeable and an easy mark at the same time is a sappodil. He is gentle, like a daffodil, but he doesn't amount to much. To be a "good fellow" unless it helps somebody who needs help or achieves a distinctly worth while result is not worth the effort. Too many "good fellows" are what they are simply because they haven't the courage to be anything better.

If you don't believe the world is changing, note the proposed law in Cook county, Illinois, where Chicago is located. Commissioners are considering a resolution to set a minimum of twenty miles an hour for motor cars on main highways. You have to move faster whether you want to or not. The old world loiters less—and is less happy as loitering goes out of fashion.

A Wisconsin judge refused a foreigner his citizenship papers because the man had been convicted of driving an auto when drunk. He will have to wait five years more for his next naturalization process. This is a wise judge. A man who will equip himself for murder by driving an auto when he is drunk ought to wait in jail until citizenship papers are granted. And then he ought not to get them.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 20—Producers as well as performers are adopting a strictly broad A manner toward impromptu cafe entertaining. Producers do not want stars thus exploited and artists see no reason why they should devote an evening out to amusing people free.

For several years it has been the custom of masters of ceremony and hostesses in cafes and supper clubs to flatter a visiting celebrity into doing a turn for mere glory of the thing. A number of producers have issued a thumbs down ukase to their hired help.

An entertainer like Al Jolson, for instance, receives more than $1,000 for a night's work, yet he as well as many of his professional brothers and sisters are frequently called upon to repeat the same performance in a place that does not even remove their cover charge.

One cabaret a few steps off Broadway owes enormous popularity to the ingenuity of the management in inviting guest stars and then singling them out to do their repertoire. The patrons see and hear a collection of top-liners that would cost the management many thousands a week.

Recently a highly-paid performer was spotlighted for a stunt after the theater. He was visibly annoyed, but made a polite bow. The applause grew and holding up his hand for silence said: "If the management will give you everything you have had free, I will sing free." That ended that.

The truth is free stunts often cheapen performers in the eyes of beholders. No where is it so true that intimacy breeds a voluptuous contempt as in the stage world. Those who see a star free in a second-class cabaret are not going to pay eight dollars to see him in a first-class theater.

Most performers are naturally gracious enough to respond to a friendly ovation with a bow and a smile. That is all that should be expected.

The meanest practical joke is reported in a mid-town pool parlor. One of the patrons is a chronic inebriate who had become excessively irritating to genuine lovers of the game. The other night it was arranged to plunge the room into sudden darkness and go on playing as though nothing happened. In the black darkness balls rattled and a man playing with the drunk remarked: "The nine ball in the side pocket." The victim of the joke slumped to the floor in white-faced terror and was carried out feet up swooning.

Those who tried to laugh wrist watches into an ignominous death have a new job to take them. The thin bracelet for men is finding many wearers and not among those you suspect knit and paint things. They are noticed on the muscular, hairy wrists of many who come under the classification of being he-ish. Among some the bracelet has become a symbol of devotion when presented by the only girl. They are shown in several first-class jewelry shops.

Another practical joke with a delightful ending concerns a dinner given by a Park avenue bachelor. His selected list of twelve guests were those who were not on speaking terms. Each was an enemy of some other. Their frigid reserve thawed under potent cocktails and before the evening was over all had restored old relationships.

A famous illustrator recently received a fan letter. It was from a girl who wanted to become an artist. She was so eager to be taken under his wing she was quite willing to become a maid of all work in his bachelor apartment. She would darn his socks, press his clothes, cook his breakfast and such. The letter concluded: "You need have no fear of Madam Grundy. I am a hunchback." There is a short story or play there somewhere in that idea.

Views of Those in Public Eye.

WILLIAM M. JARDINE.

William M. Jardine was born in Oneida county, Idaho, January 16, 1879. Until he was twenty he worked and lived on the ranches of Idaho and Montana. He was graduated from the Agricultural college of Utah in 1904, becoming an assistant in the department of agronomy on his graduation. Jardine served on the faculties of several agricultural schools and colleges, including the presidency of Kansas State Agricultural college, until 1925. He was then appointed United States secretary of agriculture.

Secretary Jardine holds that the problem of farm relief is pressing. He says:

"Farm relief will be an outstanding issue in the coming session of congress. My own views on the subject are already before the country, and there is nothing to be said further on that subject. But whatever the outcome I hope the job will be finished so that we can turn our attention to agricultural questions even more fundamental.

"A great deal of research must be done, and a great many facts on agricultural subjects need to be assembled. New difficulties are continually arising with which we do not have the time to become familiar.

"We receive many questions every day that we can not answer. This work should claim our attention and, with farm relief provided for and behind us, we shall be able to make more definite strides in the somewhat neglected field of research.

"Canadian wheat pools organized in 1921 already market fifty-two per cent. of the total wheat production.

"Their members number 140,000, leaving out only 100,000 growers.

"They have elevators already set up and they for out of savings.

"By orderly marketing, and spreading the sales throughout the year, glutting is prevented and these grower-controlled pools take advantage of better prices.

"An average price of $1.45 a bushel turned back to the farmer, whether he sold a wagon-load or a carload. This is just what must be done here."

Dinner Stories.

"And how fast were you going?" asked the judge of Tim O'Brien, third in line.

"May it please the court," said Tim with straight face, "I wuz backin' up, Yer Honor."

Annual Quiver Carnival To Be One of Biggest Social Events of Year at Harding

Homecoming Festival To Be Held in Conjunction with Yearly Affair at High School Building Night of Friday, Oct. 28

Plans are in progress at Harding High School for what is expected to be one of the biggest social events of the school year, the fourth annual Quiver Carnival and homecoming festival, given yearly at the school during the Hallowe'en season. The event this year will take place Friday night, Oct. 28.

All students of the school, their parents, patron of the school, citizens and particularly members of the alumni are cordially invited to attend the event. Booths and entertainments are arranged in the various rooms throughout the school by divers oranizations and school groups. There will be no entrance fee but a small charge for refreshments and various entertainments, the proceeds to be used in financing the affair and to boost the Harding High School paper, Quiver Junior, and yearly publication, Quiver Annual.

"Thimble Theater"

Arrangements are in charge of Miss Lucile Fereman, faculty advisor of the Quiver, assisted by the staff and various school organizations and teachers. Clever posters advertising the event are to be placed about the school Friday.

Miss Rachel McAfee, gymnasium instructor will have charge of two features of the entertainment, a "Thimble Theater," to be presented in Room 11 by members of her first period class and a musical comedy to be presented by the Kinetian Club, senior girls' gymnasium society. The "Thimble Theater" will comprise two short vaudeville acts, the one "The Bachelor Chooses a Wife," a series of pantomimes and the other, a song and dance skit of late song hits. The Kinesian Club entertainment will be presented in the gymnasium.

A "Chamber of Horrors", in charge of Miss Mary Helphrey and Miss Mabel Turney, will be on exhibit in Rooms 31 and 32 while Miss Helen Jacobs is arranging a fortune telling booth to be situated in the school library.

"Spanish Fiesta"

Miss Isabel Freer and Miss Mildred Crow will have charge of a "Spanish Fiesta" to be presented in the west hall auditorium and Miss Jean Freer of a fish pond. Miss Veda Shaw will have charge of the cider and doughnut booth and Miss Priscilla Smith of the sale of sandwiches, klondikes and other refreshments.

Other teachers arranging stunts are Misses Margaret Wolfley and Hazel Markwith, whose performance will be in east hall, and Miss Ruth Starr and Miss Lyndall Miller.

Meditations of a Married Woman

BY HELEN ROWLAND

WHAT PRICE LOVE?

WHEN a famous comedienne sues for $250,000 for the alienation of her erring husband's "love," it makes you stop and think.

If a faithless husband's love is valued at a quarter of a million, what is a DEVOTED husband's love worth?

Yet "honest, devoted love" is the kind that neither a man nor a woman seems to consider worth two cents—until it is lost, strayed or stolen and it's time to sue for alienation.

Devoted, steady, unwavering love—the kind that you don't have to work for, or worry over or struggle to keep—is a first-water gem of the rarest quality. Yet, nine times out of ten, it is treated as lightly and carelessly as a piece of glass jewelry from the ten-cent store.

It is not until a man sees the hem of love's skirt disappearing around the corner that he suddenly realizes what he is losing—and tries to snatch it back again.

It is not until a foolish woman has worn a patient love threadbare with her demands and caprices that she discovers that she has been using cloth of gold for a dish-rag—and vainly tries to patch it up again.

Many a man's shining and unselfish love has been used by a light and greedy woman as a means of extracting furs, diamonds and automobiles from him. Such love "comes so easy" that a stupid woman thinks it can't be worth much.

Many a woman's radiant devotion has been used by a thoughtless and selfish man merely as a sop to his vanity or a door-mat to be trodden all over until it is crushed out.

Yet, a woman will sob her heart out over the "lost love" of a man who never loved anybody on earth except himself. And a man will commit all sorts of folly for the love of a woman who never loved anything on earth but his pocket-book—and her looking-glass! And each of them will go into court and solemnly swear that such a "love" was worth a quarter of a million dollars.

A husband's love isn't worth a last year's almanac, unless it is ALL YOURS!

The love that you have to fight for isn't worth the price of a pair of boxing gloves. The love that has to be roped and tied isn't worth the cost of the rope!

Love is like a tooth or like your top-hair. Either you've got it, and it's PRICELESS—or you haven't got it, and it isn't worth a bad penny.

Don't Ignore Acid Scalp!

We have all been too close to people whose hair had a noticeable odor. It is due to an acidity that soap and water are powerless to prevent. You may not have acid scalp. Or you may have it and not know it. But dandruff should make you suspicious, and hair that "strings" is a sure sign.

When hair has a dull, "dead" look after curling—and the wave is all out a few hours after use of the iron—it is time to use Danderine. Just a few drops of this highly scientific preparation will check acidity, and give your hair such lovely softness that dressing it will be a delight. It will arrange easily, and stay as you arrange it. Every particle of scale will be dissolved. It makes an amazing difference. And for only thirty-five cents, your druggist will give you a bottle of Danderine that will last for weeks.—Adv.

Sally's Shoulders

by BEATRICE BURTON, Author of "HER MAN," "HONEY LOU," "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

Read This First

SALLY JEROME, pretty and [illegible] the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has not lived with her mother for nine years. The family consists of MRS. JEROME, the [illegible] BEAU and MILLIE, and herself. Mrs. Jerome enjoys poor health so Sally does the housework mornings and office work for [illegible] MR. PEEVEY afternoons.

In the flat below the Jeromes lives young TED SLOAN, an automobile salesman who wants Sally to marry him and keep on working. But the only man who interests her is JOHN NYE, whose real estate office is across the hall from Mr. Peevey's. Nye hires Millie as his secretary and becomes blindly infatuated with her, making her expensive presents, lending her his car, etc. But Millie confesses that while she likes Nye, and that she more than likes his money and position, she really prefers DAVY DAVIDSON, a salesman whom she knew in a former place of business. She says she intends to get Davidson a position in Nye's office.

Beau and Millie give so little towards the support of the flat that Sally often borrows from her spinster aunt, EMILY JEROME. Aunt Emily is going to turn her country house into a wayside inn, and wants Sally to go into business with her. But Sally, always in need of money, is afraid to risk it.

Beau gets $110 from Ted Sloan by means of two bad checks. Sally borrows the money to pay him back from Mr. Peevey. But instead of paying his debt, Beau uses the money to elope with MABEL WILMOT, and Sally begins paying both Ted and Mr. Peevey at the rate of $4 a week. A check for $200 comes from Mr. Jerome and Mrs. Jerome gives it to Beau and Mabel for a wedding gift. Sally hopes Beau will pay his debt, but he and Mabel buy a second-hand car.

Millie goes to the hospital for an appendicitis operation. During her illness Sally does as much of her work as she can in an effort to partly earn her salary. One Saturday noon John Nye gives her an additional check for herself and she tears it up and rushes away from the office in tears, feeling humiliated, somehow, because he knows how much she needs money.

Now Go On with the Story

CHAPTER XXXII

ALL that long Sunday following her outburst in John Nye's office Sally tried to make up her mind whether to go back to work for him on Monday or not.

"I've made such a fool of myself that I'm ashamed to look him in the face," she thought miserably, as she cooked dinner for her mother and Beau and Mabel.

No matter how empty the family purse might be, Mrs. Jerome insisted upon having a roast, two vegetables and a dessert for Sunday dinner. She looked forward to that dinner as a child might look forward to Thanksgiving or Christmas.

"What are your plans for the day?" she asked Beau and Mabel as they all sat at the table having the stuffed veal and the squash and scalloped tomatoes that Sally had got ready for them.

"We thought we'd take a ride out into the country," answered Mabel, who seemed to make all the plans for the pair. "We thought maybe we could buy some grape-juice cheap along the road and put it away for wild parties."

Mrs. Jerome's whole face stiffened at the mention of the "wild" parties. But she said nothing about them.

"Perhaps you'll drop me off at the hospital on your way," she sniffed. "I'm going to take some of this veal and dressing to poor Millie. The nurse says she doesn't eat enough to keep a bird alive—" And all at once her face crumpled up and she began to whimper.

At the familiar sound Sally came running from the kitchen where she had been cutting the peach cobbler that she had made for dessert.

"What's wrong, Mother?" she asked, looking from Beau's blank face to Mabel's scornful one. She wondered if either of them had said anything to hurt her mother's tender feelings.

"She's crying about Millie—because she won't eat," snapped Mabel. "My goodness, I just wish I could stop eating. Maybe I'd lose a hip or two!"

Sally put her arms around her mother. "There's nothing to cry about, dear," she said, smoothing back her mother's graying hair and holding her face against her shoulder. "Millie's been through a dreadful operation, and it's going to take time for her to feel herself again. She'll be all right, you'll see."

"She's so white and so thin," sobbed Mrs. Jerome. "And she doesn't seem to have any life in her. Oh, I don't know what to do about her, I'm sure."

"Mother," Sally said, "do you see that begonia plant over on the window sill?"

Mrs. Jerome lifted her head and gave her a startled look. "Of course, I see it," she answered, plainly puzzled. "What about it?"

Sally laughed cheerfully—much more cheerfully than her feelings warranted.

"Well, just this," she said. "That plant was just nothing but a stalk a while ago, and it was so white and sickly that I thought it never would live. And look at it! Doesn't it make you think of Millie? All pink and pretty. Please don't worry about her, Mother. I know she'll be all right. I just feel that she will be."

Mabel burst out laughing. "Girl," she said with a sneer. "You're wasting your talents working around offices. You ought to turn into a woman preacher or something. . . . Well, come on, Muggsy, if you're going with us you'd better dry those tears and get your hat on."

For some reason best known to herself Mabel had taken to calling Mrs. Jerome "Muggsy." Every time she did it Mrs. Jerome frowned and winced, but that did not bother Mabel.

At 4 o'clock, while Sally was ironing her white blouse, Ted Sloan came running up the back stairs, taking them two steps at a time and making a great noise.

"Gosh, it's a pip of a day! Want to go for a ride in 'Cheapsides'?" he asked. That was what he called his car—"Old Cheapsieds."

Sally smiled up at him as she straightened the collar of the waist before her on the board.

"I'd love to go. But you'll have to wait until I finish this blouse," she said. "And then we'll have to stop at the hospital for mother and bring her home. After that we can go."

He did not look particularly pleased. But he said "All right" and went down stairs much more slowly than he had come up.

When they got to the hospital an hour later Beau's little red car stood in the street before it. Ted, who knew a thing or two about second-hand cars, hooted when Sally showed it to him.

"It isn't worth a hundred dollars," he declared. "And I'm going up with you to Millie's room and tell him so."

But he did very little talking after he stepepd into the green-walled hospital room. For the family was just getting ready to go, and Millie was sitting up in bed, watching them listlessly as she rubbed her nails with mother-of-pearl nail polish until they were like little mirrors. On the tiny glass-topped table beside her was the plate of food that her mother had brought to her. It was untouched.

"Don't bother to come in and see us, Ted," she sang out when she saw his red head above Sally's dark one. "But I want to talk to you, Sally." She was like Du Barry receiving her ministers in her bed-chamber, ordering this one here and that one there.

Sally stood beside her.

"How do you feel today?—Better?"

"Rotten," replied Millie almost as if she was glad to be feeling badly.

"My pep's all gone," she went on, dully. "I don't know what's the matter with me. I guess maybe the old hospital gives me the blues. How can I eat in a place like this, with people going past the door on stretchers?—"

She broke off, gave Sally an intent look, and then held out a slip of paper. A telephone number was written upon it.

"That's Davy Davidson's number. Tell him I want to see him, will you?"

Sally put the paper into her shabby gray leather purse.

"Yes, but ought you to see him when you won't see Mr. Nye?" she asked, her eyes passing over fresh-cut roses and shaggy white chrysanthemums that stood on the window sills and the dresser. She knew that John Nye had sent them.

"That's some more of my business," Millie held out her hand for the paper. "Give me back that telephone number. I'll have the nurse give him my message."

But Sally put the bag behind her back. "No, I'll call him. But it does look funny, refusing to see the man you've made up your mind to marry and then asking another man to come. I think Mother or someone in the family ought to be here when he does come, too—"

"If you say another word I'll get right out of this bed!" Millie threatened angrily. "I just won't lie here and listen to you rave a minute longer—tell me what to do and what not to do! You're a year younger than I am and don't forget it!"

But it was easy to forget that Millie was older, and therefore much wiser than she, supposedly, Sally told herself as she walked down the quiet, white corridors of the hospital. At times Millie acted as if she were still in her mud-pie and pinafore days.

"I'd give a lot to know what she wants to see Davidson for," she thought riding home between her mother and Ted, all three of them very silent and subdued. Millie, on one of her bad days, was enough to subdue anybody.

"Beau and Mabel seem to have a pretty good time together, don't they?" Ted asked thoughtfully when he and Sally were alone that night.

They were sitting on the back steps, side by side, looking at the row of small houses and apartment buildings in the next street. Some of the windows were lighted up and through them they could see women moving to and fro as they got supper. Delicious odors floated up to them—boiling coffee potatoes frying, and once the rich smell of toasting cheese.

"Pretty nice—having a little home of your own. Just two people," Ted said quietly, reaching out in the darkness for Sally's small work-hardened hand. "What more could two people want than a home of their own, and a little car, and each other?"

"They could want—love" Sally answered him stonily, and she jumped up and marched straight into the house.

"Good night," she called, and he heard the door shut.

He shook his head. . . . He couldn't make her out. Just when he thought she was beginning to warm up to him she became cold and distant. She put the whole world between them with the closing of a door and a word, "Good night."

He got up and went slowly down the stairs to his own door.

On Monday morning, bright and early, Sally was in John Nye's private office, putting it into order for the day.

She loved working in it—touching the glass and silver ink-stand, laying the pencils and pens straight in the glass tray, slipping a new blotter in the blotting pad, shaking out the leather seat-cushion.

Just as she finished with the room and was starting to leave it a sharp knock came on the door.

She opened it to find Davy Davidson standing in the outer office, his brown felt hat in his hands.

He was all in brown, and for the first time she realized that he really was extraordinarily handsome in a loud way.

"Mr. Nye here?" he asked, trying to look beyond her into the private office.

Sally shook her head. "Not yet, but I'm expecting him," she said, her face flushing a little under the deep, searching look he turned on her.

"You working for him now?" he wanted to know.

Sally nodded. "Helping out, while Millie's sick. By the way, Millie wants you to go to see her at the hospital. She's awfully blue and lonesome, lying there, day after day."

He said nothing to that. "Well, I thought Nye might be here, and I took a chance, dropping in without an appointment this way," he remarked in an off-hand way and turned to go.

But Sally stopped him.

half shamefacedly at mother.

"To think that after all the hints you gave me, until this very moment. How stupid you must have thought me!"

Mrs. Possum nodded and dropped from the branch to the ground beside the boy.

"I certainly did," answered she, frankly. "And I must say that when you made all those guesses and not one of them right, I began to grow angry. I have always been so proud of belonging to such a famous family. But with all I did and said I couldn't make myself known. It took Sonnykins, here, to make you recognize us for whom we are. I told you he was clever."

Mrs. Possum waved a paw at her small son. "Come child! You have been out of Mother's pouch long enough. And though you wouldn't own it for the world, I am sure your little body aches from that fall."

Mother Possum bent over, picked up her venturesome baby and tucked him into her furry pocket. And the brave baby cuddled down and went sound asleep.

Peter looked at the baby and laughed.

"It was clever of him to keep so still when I touched him," he chuckled. "But why did he do it? If he had been so afraid of me as you said he was, I should have thought he would have run away."

Mother Possum shook her head.

"Not Sonnykins," said she. "He has been too well trained for that. Young as he is, Sonnykins knows if he ran you might run after him—or at least stay around until he came back again. But if he keeps so still you can't even feel him breathing he believes you will think he is dead and go off and leave him."

Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

Tomorrow will be Friday. It was cold this morning and the wind was blowing and the air was full of leaves that were blowing off of the trees, and our cat was chasing them around the yard when me and Jubilee got outside. Jubilee minds his own business when our cat is around, and she minds hers. They had a hard time getting acquainted but it was harder for Jubilee than it was for her. The scratch on his nose didn't get well for a week, and now they let each other alone.

If anyone holds a cat up by its tail it can't reach up far enough to scratch, and if the dog is handy the cat can be dropped on it. I was trying holding it up by the tail and some of the bunch that had got there were watching me, and my mother looked out of the back door and hollered at me, and Goop's dog was handy so I dropped it on his back, and that cat must of rid him with spurs the way they went out of the yard together, and Goop watched them out of sight, and then when my mother had shut the door he said to me that he'd bet I wouldn't drop a cat on his back. I told him I was all out of cats but I would drop a punch on his nose if that would shut him as well and he didn't dast to back down and the bunch spread out to give us room, and just then my father opened the kitchen door and said, "Young man!" and I had the milk pail and was inside of the barn in two jumps, and the bunch had skun out in every direction.

I told my folks at breakfast that I was going to get up a circus and have it over in the brickyard, and my mother said why have it in the brickyard. I told her that was where the mud-hole was and I was going to be a diving Veenus, and they all laughed and I thought my grandfather would choke on a pancake, and I asted them what was so funny and my grandfather said I couldn't be a diving Veenus, and I said I would like to know why not, and he said I couldn't be a diving Veenus any more than my aut could, and then she wanted to know why she couldn't, and he said because she couldn't swim and other reasons, and she got mad and left the table, but she was done eating. And I swiped some pancakes for Jubilee and skun out. And I'll bet I'll be a diving Veenus if I feel like it.

The Lost Bag of Tripe was walking the top of the fence between the girls' and boys' side and was looking teardst the girls' side, and Banty got a tomato that was laying on Mush's window-sill to go to seed, and it landed behind the mut's left ear and he fell on the girls' side, and by the time he found out the tomato wasn't blood and had came around looking for us we were out in from setting on the steps and looking innocent.

The Star's Daily Story for Boys and Girls

BY FLORENCE S. VINCENT

Why Little Possum Wouldn't Run Away

PETER was so perfectly sure the little fellow had badly hurt himself when he fell that when the boy saw the rascal hop to his feet and scurry to his mother, not one bit the worse for his tumble, he was too surprised to do a thing but stand with his mouth wide open, staring at the queer pair. At last Peter did manage to stammer:

"A regular April Fool trick! I'd never have believed you would ever run again, youngster, if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes. 'Playing Possum.' That's what you were doing——"

Peter stopped short. Suddenly the mystery was solved.

"Playing Possum! Why, you're a Possum!" cried the boy, and glanced

Infant Care

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless and reliable, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill throughout the system. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, and without shock to the system. Without the evil taste. Castoria is delicious! Your own tongue will tell you why "Children Cry for It." Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's the least sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea. Or whenever there's need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Only one word of warning: the above is true of genuine Castoria. Fletcher's is the original. Other preparations may or may not be as pure, as free from a single doubtful drug. Physicians tell parents to get Fletcher's Castoria, and no child of this writer's is going to test any other kind. I'll save a dime some other way.

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

KATIE'S STORY

ALTHOUGH I had already guessed that Dicky's dash from the veranda had been caused by his suspicion that the seeming hoot of the owl was in reality a signal from a human throat yet it startled me to hear Katie's words confirming my suspicion. I did not attempt to hide my reaction to her news as I might in other circumstances, for my little maid was so patently enjoying her own narrative, pausing at almost every sentence to watch the effect upon me, that I had not the heart to feign indifferent calm.

"You mean that Mr. Graham was chasing one of the Transvanians through the yard?" I asked.

She nodded her head so emphatically that her bobbed hair lost its sleek part and fell tumbling over her forehead. She put it back with an impatient hand as she answered my question.

"Dot's shoost vot I mean," she said. "He nearly caught heem too. He vood have got heem eef eet hadn't been for oder fellow."

"What other man?" I asked. "Were there two of them in the yard?"

"Not all vun time," Katie rejoined. "Second feller he no mit first vun, but I gues he coming down after first vun, for right by corner of barn, dees side, he almost knock Meester Graham down as he turn corner queeck, und he say something like 'Vere away so fast, my cherished vun?' and Meester Graham he stop short und he say something about your dam fool red friend', but ve he say dot, I don't know, for de man he talk to vas dot red-beard, red-hairman. De oder vun, de black hair one, I guess vas man Meester Graham vas chasing, man dot host like owl. He coom here dot day mit red-beard. I no see heem since."

There really was no chance to interrupt her, she was talking so fast, and I did not feel the necessity of enlightening her as to any other possible meaning of the adjective 'red' than the one she herself had evolved. With a cowardice for which I scorned myself, I also was willing to postpone a pertinent question or two until she had told me all I wished to know.

"You know," Katie leaned confidentially toward me, "dose fellows moost be awful foony acting. Dot red-beard he laf ven Meester Graham call oder man dot name, und he say he sorry, but mule got hobbes off ven he not lookin' und smear red herring all ofer map. He ask eef he do any harm, und Meester Graham he say foony like 'Oh, no, only scare our new neighbor into fits mit hees owl hoot, dot all,' und oder man say, 'vell I see he practice hees music only in our own front yard after dees, und den day valk acazer me und I scared dey stumble ofer me, und I hurry back to porch und no hear any more. But vun, two meenits later, Meester Graham coom in side porch und go oop back vay to hees room den coom down again. I guess he change hees pants und white shoes for grass all vet mit dew. Den he go out on front porch und after four, five meenits I go get you, for you say vunce you vant me tell you efersting I find out by dose Transvanian mens."

She had spiked my guns most effectually by this reference to the admonition I had given her. I knew only too well—for she herself had inadvertently betrayed it—the eavesdropping she had just practiced. Shoeless she had stolen out after Dicky and listened to his conversation with the red-bearded man. But under the circumstances there was but one thing to do and I did it.

"Thank you, Katie," I said, carefully avoiding any question concerning the source of her information which would involve an embarrassing answer. "Always tell me when you see those men unless," I looked at her steadily, "Mrs. Graham is talking to them. It was all right this time for you to come to me, but when he is at home, it will be best to let him attend to them himself."

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

My three favorite cup cake recipes

I AM sure you will find these cup cakes a dainty treat for Sunday supper desserts or when a few good friends drop in for luncheon or tea.

I make them with Crisco, the pure, snowy-white, vegetable shortening, and hardly anyone who eats them can tell they are made without expensive butter.

Cup Cakes

½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1¼ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cream Crisco and sugar. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with the milk to the first mixture. Add vanilla and beat thoroughly. Pour into greased muffin or cup cake pans and bake in quick oven (425 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes.

This recipe makes 15 to 20 cakes.

Filled Cup Cakes

Follow recipe for Cup Cakes. When cool split in halves crosswise and remove portion of the cake. Fill center with stiffly whipped cream, flavored and sweetened. Put halves together and ice all over with Creamy Chocolate Frosting.

Creamy Chocolate Frosting

1½ cups milk
4 squares unsweetened chocolate
1½ cups powdered sugar
Few grains salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cook milk with chocolate, cut in pieces, over a slow fire, stirring until thick and smooth. Add sugar and cook again until very thick, stirring constantly. Cool and add vanilla and salt.

Filled Chocolate Cakes

1½ cup Crisco
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
¾ cup milk
3 squares unsweetened chocolate
1½ cups flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoons vanilla

Cream Crisco and sugar together. Add beaten eggs and mix well. Cook the milk and chocolate, cut in pieces, over a slow fire, stirring until thick. Cool. Mix and sift flour, baking powder and salt and add alternately with the chocolate to the first mixture. Add vanilla and beat thoroughly.

Bake in small, greased cup cake pans in a quick oven (425 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. While hot remove a square from the top of each cake and substitute a marshmallow in place of the cake removed. Ice with Boiled Frosting.

Boiled Frosting

1¾ cups sugar
⅓ cup water
2 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla

Cook sugar and water together, stirring until the sugar is dissolved. Boil without stirring until the syrup forms a soft ball when tested in cold water (238 degrees F.) Pour over the stiffly beaten egg whites and beat constantly until the mixture holds its shape. When cool add vanilla.

(All measurements level)

CRISCO was used by Mrs. George O. Thurn in the Star Cooking School conducted last week.

To test your cooking fat—taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

MUCH INTEREST IN GALION PLAY

Drama Workshop Group To Present "The Youngest" Nov. 3 and 4

Galion, Oct. 20—Much local interest is centered in the forthcoming production of the Drama Workshop Players which is scheduled for Nov. 3 and 4 and rehearsals are being held each night in an effort to perfect the details of the opening attraction.

The first play of the season is Philip Barry's three-act comedy, "The Youngest," and the production is being sponsored by the local Kiwanis club. Harry Budd, C. L. Alles, James Rose and Dale Strothers are members of the committee in charge of the affair and an able group from the theatrical organization is assisting. Ethel E. Tracht is in charge of the advertising and Charles Coyle, Floyd Myers and William McFarquhar will arrange the stage setting and lighting effects.

Clever Story

The story of the play is charming and extremely clever, the tale of a modern family and especially of the youngest member who is changed from the victim of circumstances to the conqueror. Paul Randall will make his first appearance with the players, as Richard Winslow, "The Youngest." Others in the cast are: Franklin Crane as Oliver Winslow; Robert Yochem, as Mark Winslow; Hazel J. Garverick, as Muff; Virginia Postance Phipps, as Augusta Martin; Glen Kershner, as Alan Martin; Ava Swartz, as Mrs. Winslow; Helen Spiggle, as Katie, and Miriam Sayre, as Nancy Blake.

As an introductory feature members of the Drama Workshop Players will be guests of the Kiwanians at their noonday luncheon next Tuesday and several of the officers and the director, Mrs. L. E. Beck, will give short addresses and the entire cast will be presented.

ANOTHER MARION LADY INDORSING THE NEW KONJOLA

Ended the Dreadful Neuritis Pains She Was Suffering

Reports are now being received from all parts of Marion, in which men and women are describing the wonderful relief this celebrated Konjola medicine has given them in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders or rheumatism and neuritis. Just a few days ago, Mrs. Emma McNeal, well known Marion lady, living at 322 Uncapher Ave., this city, made the following remarkable statement to the Konjola Man who is at the Stump and Sams Pharmacy, 121 S. Main St., Marion, where he is meeting large crowds in person every day and explaining this surprising new compound.

"Konjola has helped me a great deal more than I ever expected of any medicine," said Mrs. McNeal. "It built up my health in general and at the same time it relieved the awful neuritis pains which I had been suffering for years.

"I was having a terrible time with my nerves and I couldn't find a medicine to help me. But the worst thing about my case was the dreadful neuritis pains which affected my arms and limbs. My muscles seemed to jerk and twist, and I often felt like every nerve in my body was on edge. I couldn't sleep, and I know I was suffering worse agonies than I could describe in writing. Both day and night I was in misery.

"I couldn't find anything that would really end my trouble, and I didn't know what to do next. Then I heard about Konjola and what it was doing for Marion people, so I went to the Konjola Man and I got this medicine and started taking it right away. I noticed a difference almost at once, and I continued with Konjola until now I can hardly realize that I ever had a sick day in my life, and the wonderful relief I got from that awful neuritis is the greatest blessing of all. I can sleep a whole night without one single pain. I always feel good in the mornings, and seem to have more life and energy than I ever noticed in myself before.

"After all the great good Konjola has done for me I can recommend it to everyone."

The Konjola Man is at the Stump & Sams Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., Marion, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Konjola is now being sold by all of the good druggists in every nearby town of this whole section.—Adv.

The Best Cough Syrup Is Home-made

Here's an easy way to save $2, and yet have best cough medicine you ever tried.

You've probably heard of this famous home-made cough syrup. But have you ever used it? Thousands of families feel that they could hardly keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon earn it a permanent place in your home.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. Or, if desired, use clarified honey, instead of sugar syrup. It tastes good, never spoils, and gives you a full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quickly this home-made remedy conquers a cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through every air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse or tight cough, lifts the phlegm, heals the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for throat, tickle, hoarseness, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract and palatable guaiacol, which has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment, ask your druggist for "2½ ounces of Pinex" with directions. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money promptly refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns and Callouses a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with powders, footbaths or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

All druggists guarantee the very first bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil to end your foot troubles or money back.—Adv.

Taxation and Improvements Are Discussed in Letter

(Managing Editor's Note: This is the second part of a communication received from George B. Christian by The Star. As noted in the editor's note on the first article these views are Mr. Christian's and not necessarily subscribed to by The Star).

The writer of this article was born in the city of Marion in 1846, and has been a resident thereof more than eighty years with the exception of a short time in early youth.

Based upon my experience gained in official service during this time I have undertaken an investigation of matters relative to taxation in the political divisons of Marion County, results of which are stated in this article. During my period of business I was associated with the late Judge Caleb H. Norris for more than a third of a century. Upon his death, property in which he was interested was placed in my charge. Among these properties was a tract of land which by meets and bounds occupied the tract resting 242 feet on Park-st, west side, and the south side of Farming-st with a frontage say of something like three lot fronts. This property included the old stone house, erected 100 years ago, and the frame house some 60 feet west of the stone house—both houses facing on Farming-st.

Cities Instance

Upon going to the treasurer's office to pay taxes, I discovered that the assessment for paving Park-st, upon this little property appraised at less than $1,000, to my astonishment was $3,300. I instituted an investigation and found that Park-st had been improved with brick 24 feet in width; and that the expense therefore, including interest, was $145,500 per mile. My familiarity with the statute provided for assessment for making such improvements, brought about a refusal upon my part to pay the assessment, and a recourse to the court of common pleas for legal relief was had. The investigation necessary in setting up our claims to the court, led me far afield in an attempt to find out how much an improvement could possibly be constructed where there was not sufficient property to meet the necessary expense. During this time I became well acquainted with the rates of taxation levied by the various authorities having charge of the city government, school district and county affairs. Finding that Park-st had been duplicated many times and that there were other procedures that I considered not in accord with the statutes of Ohio caused me to make the investigation, the result of which is here submitted.

I do not desire in my old age to be considered a pessimistic grouch, but having an interest back of me that includes a considerable part of the ownership of the real estate of the city of Marion as valued under the new appraisement, I feel that I am within my rights in protecting this property from illegal or burthensome taxation that I believe must be regulated by legal procedure in the future.

Taxation Comparisons

In the city of Marion, Marion School district, and the county—from 1918 to and including 1926—tax rates were as follows within the city of Marion: For 1918 the total rate was 12.81, and the duplicate of the city was $31,267,150. This duplicate valuation multiplied by the rate, indicates revenues which were produced thereby amounting to $401,470. At this time the city rate was 4.483; the county rate was 3.2; the school rate was 4.550; other rates were .328. Eight years later, after the new appraisement, we find the duplicate for the city of Marion has been increased in round numbers $18,822,540, giving us a total duplicate of $50,080,690. The tax rate for 1925—which we have before us—was 23.888. This duplicate multiplied by this rate of taxation was calculated to produce $1,196,512.51 of revenue.

This result shows that this tax rate of 1918 was practically doubled in 1925, and that in the face of this increase in rates, the duplicate has been increased as noted. By this same method of procedure and calculation we note that the revenues for the city of Marion in 1918 were $140,170.63 compared with those of 1925—$482,614.18, an increase of $342,443.55. We need not enter into particulars giving rates of taxation and duplicate totals during the intermediate years. The tax rate for 1926 is 23.70 with the revenue total, however, about the same as 1925. This increase in taxation, this burthen levied upon the taxpayers of Marion has resulted from, as I shall hereafter disclose, illegal excess assessments over the amount that should be collected from those benefited, made a charge upon the city treasury. In addition to this, an enormous mileage of improved streets and alleys have within the past twenty years proven to be what the writer considers worthless. The aggregate loss to the city by worthless construction of street improvements is so enormous that by many of our taxpayers and officials it will undoubtedly be considered unbelievable.

Street Assessments

I express the belief that there have been street improvements constructed in this city where from $150,000 to $250,000 has been paid, or will be paid, from the city treasury on account of the illegal assessments that could not be collected from the property benefited. The loss to the city treasury by poor construction of improved streets is appalling. East Center street now has its third improvement, and with the third assessment still unpaid, is in ruins. As the city treasury pays 50 per cent of this secondary improvement, known as resurfacing, it can at once be seen that if this work is carried to any considerable extent, the burden upon the city would be almost beyond computation. In the city of Marion, W. Center-st—improved more than a third of a century ago, brick laid upon a foundation of rolled macadam—could easily have endured for 50 years had not the destruction caused by street car rails and the continual taking up of the street for all kinds of purposes without any systematic attempt at restoration. For this reason, we will be compelled to resurface W. Center-st with a loss of at least 10 years of usefulness. S. Greenwood does not have a traffic equal to one per cent of W. Center; S. Greenwood properly paved should last far more than half a century. It is today in ruins. Belle fontaine-av, if I recall it correctly, has had its third dose. Prospect-st the same. E. Church-st has had a double dose, and today you can note how worthless it is by the most casual examination. The mere thought of Columbia, Silver, N. Greenwood and many others, should give taxpayers the horrors.

Lack Interest, He Says

In looking over so-called essential street improvements, we have discovered that they are rushed through regardless of conditions. Officials seem to have no interest in the welfare of the taxpayer, or at least do not investigate the situation but just go ahead regardless. I will only present here one instance to make this clear. Some one thought that George-st ought to be improved from Main to State. There were four lot owners, two at the corner of George and State, and two at the corner of George and Main. At the Main-st end, benefits could accrue from a business standpoint to the taxpayers; at the State-st end to the north was the E. K. Clark property; to the south that of Mrs. Laura Dombaugh. Both of these properties had been assessed for improving State-st—the Dombaugh property a story and a half brick, 80 years old, with no basement—was assessed for this latter improvement $2,000 which includes the interest. The same was the case with the Clark property. The Clark property had been held to be worth $10,000. It finally sold for $6,000.

The Dombaugh property, appraised too high, confronts a tax and assessment payment of $350 a year for the next 10 years. It can at once be seen that the value of this property has been utterly destroyed.

If the owners were unfortunate enough to desire to rent it, the rental would not begin to pay the taxes, insurance and repairs. The improvement of this thoroughfare—the distance of two lot lengths—costs more than $8,000, interest included. It is supposed to be asphalt construction, fully curbed on both sides; at a guess its width is 26 feet.

Doesn't Discuss Cost

The writer would not undertake to discuss the question of cost, leaving that for further consideration, and will answer the question that was promptly put to him: What would you have done with this street in the way of improving it to have prevented this distressing burden upon these taxpayers mentioned? I answered as an engineer and at once: "I should have constructed for this improvement an 18 foot roadway of two layer macadam built from the best road building macadam there is in the central west, right here in our Marion quarries. There would have been a heavy, thoroughly rolled base and a top course of the modern type with a penetrative mixture of some of the new asphalt or tar penetrative substance." This makes a fine dustless road and would have been sufficient for all the traffic through the street mentioned. This is same type of street improvement that is being used in Columbus, Toledo, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and elsewhere. Engineers now days do not attempt to put the expensive paved roadways in districts unable to pay for them. Had this admirable method of street improvement been used in certain localities in Marion, the taxpayers would have been benefited to the extent of more than one-half a million dollars.

I am of the opinion that if the city street and alley committee would get out once in a while they might find a good many things worth their lookin' over, particularly in the method of constructing sidewalks. We have enough sidewalks in Marion to reach from here to below Columbus. Much of this sidewalk construction calls for a good and sufficient foundation of crushed stone or other material, and No. 1 free stone for the walk surface. These sidewalks sink down below the surrounding lawns, and the people wonder why. When they lift the walks for the purpose of raising them, they make the discovery that the foundation is insufficient.

Recalls Smith Bill

We call attention to the legislation during the administration of Governor Harmon when there was enacted a bill known as the Smith Tax Bill. That bill intends to restrict the total rate of taxation to one per cent with a reappraisement of all real estate giving a valuation of that contemplated under the law, "the true value in money." No sooner had this law become effective than the legislature was bombarded with requests for amendments that would overcome the restrictions proposed by the Smith Bill. At this writing the school tax in Marion is 2.785, dangerously near the limit of the Smith law. The city government comes forward with a total levy of 9.035. It will thus be noted that these two items almost double the limitation of the Smith Bill. The county levy in 1918 was 3.2 mills; in 1925 it was 5.14. It can thus be seen that every official divison of the county having authority for the collection and disbursement of taxes piled up increased lines almost uniformly notwithstanding the remarkable growth in the duplicate. Ohio has had experience in these matters and if we do not profit by our experience we may in the end be compelled to face economic disaster to our growing city.

While the writer believes that the statements herein made can be verified, he is perfectly willing to correct any manifest error if his attention is called to it. We do not know who the firms are that during the last quarter of a century have contracted for the construction of many of our city improvements, nor do we recall who the engineers were except at this writing we are acquainted with the fact that Mr. Cathers is the city engineer. We do not now recall in regular order the names of the councilmen or the supervising directors of the various departments of the city government. This paper as prepared has been arranged statement by statement in good faith and we trust that office-holders and taxpayers will accept it in the same spirit.

Respectfully,
(Signed) George B. Christian.

The result is the perfected Haag Vortex—a marvel of efficiency and beauty. It washes clothes snow-white in 4 to 7 minutes without tearing or tangling—thanks to the patented Haag Vortex agitator.

Remus Murder Trial May Involve Official Washington

CALL SARGENT TO TESTIFY

Other Notables Will Be Subpenaed: Depositions Being Taken

Special from Atlanta, Ga., to Washington, D. C., Oct. 20—That official Washington will become enmeshed in the Remus trial is the promise of Attorney Charles Elston and First Assistant County Prosecutor Carl E. Basler who are hoping 20 states seeking evidence that will be used for and against George Remus, former "king of the bootleggers" when he is tried for the killing of his wife, Imogene Remus, in Cincinnati next month.

A number of President Coolidge's cabinet and many others high in the official life of Washington are expected to testify.

The cabinet member is Attorney General John H. Sargent.

In addition, Mrs. Mable Walker Willebrandt, assistant United States attorney general in charge of criminal prosecution, Edgar T. Hoover, chief of the department of justice, Dr. E. L. Jones, in charge of the nation's liquor laws, former Prohibition Commissioner David H. Blair and many other minor officials have been subpenaed and are expected to give important testimony.

Laxity Charged

According to Attorney Elston, the purpose of taking depositions from Sargent and others in Washington is to take advantage of the information gathered by Tom Wilcox, agent in charge of the Detroit office of the department of justice during the government's investigation of the activities of Franklin J. Dodge, Jr., former ace of the department of justice, and Imogene Remus.

Attorney Elston hopes to obtain the acquittal of Remus if permitted to use the information contained in the department of justice records as evidence.

Already it has been charged by George L. Remus from his murderer's cell in the Hamilton County Jail that those responsible for the enforcement of law in Washington have been lax in meting out justice to Franklin L. Dodge and Mrs. Imogene Remus.

Remus charged that someone high in the office of the United States Attorney General is responsible for the apparent immunity of Dodge and Mrs. Remus.

Whether or not testimony will be developed to prove these charges will be brought out during the Washington inquiry, is a matter of speculation.

Stops in Atlanta

It is believed that Attorney Elston will conduct his inquiry and attempt to establish as evidence the charges made by Congressman F. L. La Guardi who, during the last session of congress, charged that the prosecution of the former department of justice ace and Mrs. Remus had been neglected by the government.

The deposition party will arrive in Washington late today from Atlanta, Ga., where important depositions were taken from Warden John W. Snook and Clint Hager, United States district attorney of northern Georgia.

It was learned from Attorney Elston that several new witnesses were uncovered by Remus investigators in Atlanta, Ga. One of these witnesses, according to Attorney Elston, has consented to appear in open court and testify for the defense. For that reason no deposition was taken from this witness.

Mystery Woman Found

It was also learned that three other witnesses who were to have given depositions in Atlanta today have consented to appear personally at Cincinnati for the trial.

From reliable sources it was also learned that the state had uncovered a mystery woman witness at Birmingham, Ala. This woman, whose name was not divulged by First Assistant County Prosecutor Carl E. Basler, communicated with Mr. Basler by long distance telephone from Birmingham, Alabama, and is believed to have divulged valuable information concerning Mr. Remus while he was confined at Atlanta Penitentiary. This witness also has promised to testify for the state during Remus' fight to save his life from Ohio's electric chair.

According to the telegram received by Basler from County Prosecutor Charles E. Taft, II, Harry Brown, brother of Mrs. Imogene Remus, will join the state officials at Washington and assist in the development of the state's case.

It was also learned today that George L. Conners, first lieutenant of the former bootleg king, will join Elston in Washington.

The first Washington depositions will be taken Friday morning in the office of Jesse C. Adkins.

Church-st, left this morning for Vinton, O., to attend the funeral of Mr. Caldwell's grandmother, Mrs. Lydia Eblin, who died yesterday following a long illness caused by cancer. She was 89 years of age and was a pioneer resident of Vinton and vicinity.

Mrs. Eblin is survived by three daughters and two sons, Mrs. J. W. Caldwell and M. E. Eblin, both of this city, Mrs. Henry McGhee, Mrs. Melvina Schuler and Timothy Eblin, of Vinton.

Mild-Eyed Housewife Scores Decisive Knockout in County Jail

Chicago, Oct. 20—Louis Tisano awoke in his cell at the county jail today with a hazy recollection of being run over by a truck or something—he wasn't quite sure.

Last night, Mrs. Harry M. Gerhard, a slim, mild-eyed housewife, was asked to view a number of prisoners in the hope that she might identify the bandit, who choked and robbed her in her home yesterday morning.

Half way down the line Mrs. Gerhard stopped, drove a left uppercut to a prisoner's chin and followed through with a right smash to the jaw. The prisoner, later identified as Tisano, went down in a heap for the full count of ten—or more.

"That's him," said Mrs. Gerhard.

HILL'S WIFE BRINGS MAINTENANCE SUIT

Reports of Marital Rift Are Confirmed by Court Action

Butte, Mont., Oct. 20—Reports of a marital rift in the home of Walter L. Hill, son of James J. Hill, empire builder, were confirmed today when it became known that Mildred Richardson Hill, former Follies beauty, had brought suit for separate maintenance against her millionaire husband on the grounds of cruelty.

Shortly after Hill's divorce from his first wife upon whom he made a large property settlement, he married Mildred Richardson, who immediately furnished his palatial ranch home at an estimated cost of $100,000.

After Hill's divorce and remarriage, about eight months ago, the present Mrs. Hill and her bridegroom travelled incognito, refusing to grant interviews and proving to be quite elusive.

After an extensive wedding trip they returned to the ranch and nothing was heard of them until the filing of papers last Monday.

Red And Black Reserves To Play LaRue Friday Afternoon

First Stringers Have Easy Week As Open Date Gives Them One Week Layoff

Coach Bohyer Will Take Along About 30 on Trip; Varsity Will Not Be in Uniform; Garrett and Ansley Ill

BY TOM BUCHANAN
Sports Editor, The Star

THE Red and Black reserves will come into their own Friday afternoon when Coach Dewey Bohyer takes them to LaRue where they will meet the high school team of that village. An open date for the varsity on Saturday makes the game Friday possible.

For several weeks the reserves have been turning out about 35 strong to bear the brunts of the practice sessions. Many of these know before a major game starts and while they are on the practice that the chances are slight that they will be called upon to start. But no team is stronger than its reserves and to those ragged jerseyed athletes goes no small credit for the success of the Red and Black this season.

But Friday afternoon they will not be taking the bumps of the varsity in scrimmage. They will be defending the colors of Harding just as surely as does the varsity in the major games of the season.

Coach Bohyer will take about 30 players along. Members of the varsity squad will be taken along but will not be in uniform.

For the first time this week the varsity had a light scrimmage last night. With the open date Saturday the team is being given a rest. The work out last night was light. There was a signal drill and a light scrimmage. With a light workout tonight the team will be given a rest for the remainder of the week.

With two exceptions the team is in good shape after the Ashland game. Garrett, right half back, has been ill with tonsilitis this week and Ansley has been bothered with a severe cold. Both are expected to be recovered before the first of the week, however.

Benefit Game Scheduled For Eagles Ball Club

BISHOPS EXPECTED TO BE IN GOOD FORM FOR BIG RED CLASH

Methodists Show Improvement Over Early Season Showing

Delaware, Oct. 20—Coach George Gauthier expects his Ohio Wesleyan football team to reach the peak of its form Saturday when the Battling Bishops meet Denison at Granville in a Buckeye Athletic association tilt.

The Methodist showed decided improvement in their victory here last week over Marshall college of Huntington, W. Va., and they are showing continued improvement in their practice sessions this week against the freshmen, making Gauthier confident that his inexperienced eleven has at last hit its stride.

Wesleyan is expected to be in good condition for the game with the Big Red with only Merwin Breese, halfback, on the casualty list. Abbey and Tilton, regular tackles, who were on the bench with injuries last week, are back in the harness as well as Hal Welty, a halfback, who also has been injured.

The Denison tussle will afford Wesleyan an opportunity to climb in the Buckeye association race. Despite the overwhelming defeat at the hands of Miami two weeks ago, the Bishops have not given up hope of retaining the Buckeye title which they have won for two successive years. Miami and Wittenberg at present are leading the pack.

GOV. VIC DONAHEY TO SEE GRID GAME

Will Occupy Special Box with Five of His Six Sons

Columbus, Oct. 20—Governor A. Vic Donahey and five of his six sons will occupy an official box at the Michigan-Ohio football game at Ann Arbor, Saturday, it was announced here today.

The governor will head an official party which will include Adj. Gen. Frank Henderson, Dr. H. R. Burbacker, the governors' physician, and C. H. Sisson, the governor's personal investigator.

President Rightmire of the university will be represented by Prof. T. S. French, Ohio's representative on the Big Ten Conference board, because a conflicting engagement will prevent Rightmire from attending the game.

John Keyser, of Marietta, and L. E. Laybourne, of Springfield, will be among the University Trustees who will accompany the official party aboard the special train leaving Columbus Saturday morning.

BOWLING RESULTS

The American Express team won two out of three games from the Hocking Valley last night in the Industrial bowling league. The Anthony Laundry team won three straight from the Star in a game that had been previously postponed. P. Rice, rolling with the Laundry had a total of 608 for three games.

The Laundry-Y-Indus game was postponed until later.

In the Business Women's league Blums and Porters split. Blums lost the first game by one pin. Slagels beat Reynolds two straight and Burnetts and Sautters split.

R. Porter with 185 rolled last night has high score for women for the week.

In a match game between the Displaymen and a picked women's team the former won two out of three. The women bowlers were spotted 100 pins each game.

AS BAN SAID GOODBYE

Ban Johnson, for 27 years president of the American league, now is Ban Johnson, citizen. Nothing more.

He has resigned his office and is resting at Excelsior Springs, Mo. This photo of the man who organized the American league in 1900 was snapped as he was leaving his office for the last time.

Frank J. Navin, vice president of the league, and president of the Detroit Tigers, is filling the president's chair until Johnson's successor is elected. It is believed E. S. Barnard, president of the Cleveland club, will be the new president.

Old and New Faces To Be In Ohio-Michigan Line Up

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20—Exactly six men on the Ohio State and Michigan elevens will start the battle Saturday who were in these opposing lineups a year ago in the remarkable game in the Ohio Stadium last fall. Memories of that furious struggle which cost the Bucks a share in championship honors by the score of 17 to 16 still linger in their minds and impress the importance of the forthcoming battle.

Five on Each Team

Strangely enough, five men on each team will confront the same opponents they encountered November last. The entire right side of Ohio's line will be across the neutral zone from the same faces they saw on the Buckeye battleground in 1926. The Ohioans are Captain Meyer, guard; Uridil, tackle, and "Deb" Rowan, end. The Michiganders are Captain Oosterbaan, end; Baer, tackle, and Palmeroli, guard.

Again on the other side of the skirmishers are Raskowski, tackle, and Gabel of Michigan. Gilbert, of the Ann Arbor squad, can take his second look at Freddy Grim across the line of scrimmage. The two "unmatched" men are Robin Bell at left end for Ohio, and Rich, of Michigan, who played a half last year but who may start at the fullback post Saturday.

Loss by Graduation

Both teams experienced a similar loss by graduation of their centers. For Michigan, this culmination of four years of study took out Truskowski, center; the peerless "Benny" Friedman at quarter, and Molenda at fullback—straight through the middle of the entire team. And the same for Ohio—center Alex Klein, Clark, quarter and Captain Marty Karow at fullback. Loveitt's loss at right guard for the Wolverines is also matched by the departure of All-American Ed Hess at left guard for the Scarlet and Gray.

Of the men replacing these departed heroes, many were in last year's game although they failed to start. Leo Hoffman, who may start at the quarterback position, was an understudy for Friedman last year, while Babcock who takes the halfback post vacated by the graduation of Rich to "full," has had two years experience. Three newcomers complete the lineup of Yost and Weiman—Pommering, right tackle, Frank Harrigan, right end, and Bovard, at center.

Supply of Material

In the way of experienced men who were non-starters in 1926, Ohio can offer Ullery at center, Joe Cox at guard, Ohsner at fullback, Alber in the blocking half post and Eby and Marek as backfield running mates. If Cory and Huston get into the game, as they are sure to, they will be among the new Buckeyes.

SPORTS WRITERS TO NAME PLAYER

New York, Oct. 20—The sports writers selected to name the most valuable player in the National league are finding the task such a difficult one that they will not announce their decision until Dec. 7. Leading candidates for the honor are Paul Waner, Pittsburgh; Travis Jackson and Burleigh Grimes, New York; Jess Haines and Frankie Frisch, St. Louis; Charley Root, Chicago; and Red Lucas, Cincinnati.

DAYTON FLIERS MEET QUANTICO MARINES

Saturday To Be Homecoming day at Dayton University

Dayton, Oct. 20—The Quantico Marines will make their second annual appearance at University of Dayton's stadium next Saturday, Oct. 22, when they meet the Dayton Fliers in Dayton's Homecoming event. Five hundred reservations of alumni have already been received and the largest Homecoming in history is expected.

In last year's game with the Leatherneeks the service team was forced to accept the short end of a 7-2 count. A peculiar coincidence in the Marine football record last year was that they lost to every Ohio college on their schedule, the other two defeats being by John Carroll of Cleveland and St. Xavier of Cincinnati.

In the last four seasons Dayton has broken even in her intersectional conflicts, defeating the Marines and Bucknell, losing two to Holy Cross and winning and losing from the Haskell Indians. Quantico and Haskell are the two remaining intersectional opponents on this year's schedule.

Cross Word Puzzle Degree Needed For Post Grad Work In Grid Rules

BY FRANK G. MENKE

T[illegible] have secured their di- [illegible] cross word puzzle ex- [illegible] years for skull practice, [illegible] a whirl with the new foot- [illegible] they'll probably com- [illegible] despair.

[illegible] making blokes contracted a [illegible] winter that leaving well [illegible] was an all wrong idea. [illegible] the fact that football as [illegible] played for six or seven [illegible] been wholly and completely satisfying to the coaches, the players and its millions of supporters.

First Guess Doesn't Count

They apparently contracted a kink in their intellects and when they concluded doing things with those rules—well, no one yet has been able to determine whether football has become basket ball, handball, pocket billiards, or a new form of two stepping.

All that even the most nimble witted so far have been able to discover is that it's no longer football as was.

The boys who make the rules, contracted a quaint notion that it was all wrong for goal posts to remain on the goal lines. So they ordered them moved ten yards back. Since then, various teams have scored touchdowns and the officials, forgetting that the goal posts no longer did what they are supposed to do—mark the goal lines—didn't know a touchdown had been scored.

They're introduced a zoning system this year which baffles those who are trying to figure out what it is all about—and why. So far, all that anybody seems to know about the zone rule, is that it's all right to do something in one zone, but all wrong in the neighboring zone.

Serves Him Right

It seems that if Fullback Smith punches the opposition quarterback on the nose in Zone 2, that Fullback Smith will be suspended forever and a day, but that if he happens to smack him while in Zone 5, it counts as two touchdowns for his team, and that the quarterback is subject to fine and imprisonment for permitting his nose to be in the region of Fullback Smith's fist while in Zone 5.

If Halfback Algernon hits the line for 27 yards while in Zone 1, it would seem to mean, according to certain interpretations of the zoning rules that his side is credited with a 27 yard gain through the line. But should it happen in Zone 3 or 4, it shall be construed as a foot fault, he will be declared loser of the game, set and match and that his teammates will have to replace all divots and refund money for all fifth game tickets, out of their ice cream sundae allowances.

If a player touches a punt, it's a fumble and anybody's ball under the new rules.

If he misses a direct pass, it's a fumble and anybody's ball.

Note the Difference

But, if he misses an indirect pass of the so-called lateral variety—well, that's not a fumble.

Can you think up a wilder contrast in rules governing almost identical plays?

Here's another dude for mentality to grapple with:

If a player fumbles a forward pass, the ball is dead and it is put back into play at the STARTING POINT. That means no gain of any kind is established.

But if a player fumbles a backward (or lateral) pass, the ball also becomes dead and it remains in possession of the original team BUT, it goes BACK INTO PLAY on the spot WHERE IT LANDED on terra firma.

Thus and therefore, a fumble gets a team nowhere on a forward pass, but on a backward pass, a team can gain tremendous yardage by the simple process of having one of its men INTENTIONALLY FUMBLE and, when so doing, hat the ball forward—for as great a distance as possible.

"Death" remarked a football official after he had spent a month trying to figure out the rules, "you ain't got no sting for me—not after what I gotta go through with this season."

Change in Shift Rule Slows up "Biff" Jones' West Point Grid Team

Game with Yale Saturday Should Tell Whether or Not Cadets Have Good Football Outfit; Plenty of Veteran Material in Lineup

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 20—One [illegible] the big enigmas of the present [illegible] season is the Army eleven. [illegible] no doubt that Biff Jones has [illegible] a lot of hard work with his [illegible] material but the returns have [illegible] coming in slowly and what little [illegible] Army has shown in action has [illegible] more or less contradictory. But [illegible] should be answered after the [illegible] take the field against Yale in [illegible] annual clash in the bowl on Saturday afternoon.

Like Notre Dame, the Army employs the shift very extensively in its offense in other years and the rule requiring a stop of a full second before the ball has been passed appears to have worked havoc with the West Pointers' attack.

This was never better illustrated than in the battle with Davis-Elkins last week. The Southern eleven, to be sure, was nobody's setup, but the Army had real trouble in uncorking a scoring punch until the final period when the sturdy Davis-Elkins line had been pounded into a pulp by the superb West Point forwards. Then it was easy for the Army backs to pile up the touchdowns that brought victory by a comparatively big score.

The Army has revamped its attack to such an extent that it has retained few features easily recognizable as basic plays of the 1926 season. Most important apparently is the stress that Jones is placing on the forward pass now. It will be recalled a year ago the Army used the pass little, if at all. But Jones seems to have restored the pass to its old time place of importance because it was trotted out a good many times against Davis-Elkins and used in a way that indicated that Jones was determined to employ it in the big games to come.

With the team that he has at his disposal Jones should take the Army far along the championship road. The backfield is without doubt one of the best and certainly is the most experienced in the country with Harry Wilson, one time Penn State star, playing his seventh year of varsity football. Mechan at quarterback is not the best field general in the world but in Murrell and Cagle, the other regular component parts of the backfield, the Army has a wonderfully powerful pair. Cagle is a dangerous man every time he gets his hands on the ball.

Gibner, Piper, Nave, Hutchinson and O'Donnell are the understudies and they all measure up close to the regulars.

Jones has a line well up to West Point standards. It is heavy and charges with terrific force. Incidentally it is well fortified with reserves. Sprague and Perry stand out as the best tackles the Army has had in some time. Hall at center and Hammack and Seaman at the guards give the center of the line the power of a battering ram on attack and are dependable on defense. There are at least two good players in reserve for each regular between the tackles.

Big Ten Teams Get Last Minute Drills; Wolverines Lose Taylor; Harrigan Back

Misfortune Continues To Hound Stagg as He Prepares for Penn; Hawley Perfects Emergency Aerial Attack for Illini; Pat Page Stresses Punting

COLUMBUS, Oct. 20—The only Ohio State players sure of their jobs as starters in the game with Michigan Saturday are Meyer, guard, Raskowski, tackle and Grigg, quarterback. This trio has been working steadily all week, while the other veterans have been shifted regularly between the first and second elevens.

HANLEY PERFECTS EMERGENCY AERIAL ATTACK

Evanston, Ill.—Coach Dick Hanley is using the final practice hours before Saturday's important conference clash with Illinois to perfect his emergency aerial attack in case his ball toters are unable to penetrate Zuppke's line. Lewis, Gustafson and Holmer can be depended upon to assault the line, but if it proves impregnable then Waldo Fisher, the star wing, will be on the receiving end of many passes. The Wildcats play either game, but are best at straight football.

PUNTING WORRIES GOPHERS

Minneapolis—The punting problem looms today as the chief worry of the Minnesota coaches in preparing the Gopher eleven for the conference clash with Iowa. The first string kickers are working apart from the varsity, having been excused from all scrimmage work.

MISFORTUNE HOUNDS STAGG

Chicago—Misfortune continues to hound Coach Alonzo Stagg in his task of preparing the Maroons for the big intersectional tilt with Pennsylvania here Saturday. Two more men failed to answer roll call today as a result of injuries received during the week. They are Rayisson, who performed well against Purdue last week, and Garon, who is badly needed at tackle.

WISCONSIN READY FOR PURDUE

Madison, Wis.—With defensive plans completed for the battle with Purdue Saturday, Coach Thistlethwaite today will utilize the last practice session in polishing off the Wisconsin offensive. No effort to assemble a starting lineup has been made and several of the regulars are scattered through various elevens.

TAYLOR OUT OF MICHIGAN LINEUP

Ann Arbor, Mich.—La Verne Taylor, sophomore end who was injured in the Wisconsin game is lost to the Michigan varsity for the tilt with Ohio State, it was announced today. The news that Taylor would not start was tempered somewhat by assurances that Harrigan will resume his labors at tackle Saturday.

ANOTHER VETERAN LOST TO ILLINI

Champaign, Ill.—One more veteran was lost to the Illini varsity today for the game against Northwestern Saturday when the faculty department confirmed the report of Arthur D'Ambrosio's suspension for violation of the no-car rule for students. Coach Zuppke had moved D'Ambrosio from an end position to fullback to strike a balance in the Illinois backfield.

Bloomington, Ind.—Punting is being stressed upon Indiana gridders by Coach Pat Page, who believes the Notre Dame-Indiana clash here Saturday may be won or lost in this department of the game. Stephenson and Magnabosco will be in the backfield to do the punting in place of Harrell and Bulay, who were injured in the Minnesota game.

PURDUE LEAVES FOR MADISON, WIS.

Lafayette, Ind.—Purdue will hold its last scrimmage here today before embarking for Madison where the Boilermakers engage the Badgers this Saturday. Boots, a sub tackle, is being tried out to replace the injured Leon Hutton, and is showing some promise.

HAWKEYES TO MEET GOPHERS

Iowa City, Ia.—The Iowa varsity and two reserve elevens entrain today for Minneapolis where the Hawkeyes battle Minnesota Saturday. Jessen, veteran tackle who was injured early in the season will replace Schleusner on the left side of the line, it was announced.

TOURNEY SUNDAY

Four Tri-County League Teams Will Play at Little Sandusky

Harpster, Oct. 20—Four baseball teams of the Tri-County league will participate in a tournament at the Harpster Woodmen's diamond at Little Sandusky next Sunday afternoon. The teams are nearly evenly matched and should provide some good entertainment for the fans. The first game will be called at 12:15 o'clock.

The teams participating in the tournament are Harpster Woodmen, Claridon, Benton and New Winchester.

EASTERN GRID PUNTS

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20—Having concluded its home practice by working out in a driving rain for an hour and a half, the Penn squad will leave here at noon today for its game at Chicago. The thirty-seven players will be accompanied by 500 rooters. Johnny Shober has regained his quarterback berth. Magal has replaced Monk at left guard and Leon Westgate of Kalamazoo, Mich., has been substituted for Olcey at centre.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 20—The Yale squad will get a final long scrimmage today in preparation for the Army game. Mike Flaherty and Louis Ladd, relief linemen, have been injured. Billhardt and Lampe, scrub backs, were promoted to the varsity squad.

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 20—Army plans to surprise Yale with several new trick plays, on which Wilson and Cagle scrood touchdowns in practice. The squad is due for a hard workout today.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 20—Mike Miles, last year's varsity fullback, will be back in the lineup when the Tigers face Cornell. Princeton is not practicing passing and may try to beat the Ithacans at their own game—off tackle smashes.

Ithaca, N. Y., Oct. 20—Scott has been replaced by Sinclair in the Cornell backfield. Coach Dobie has a wealth of material for the line and is constantly shifting his forwards.

Hanover, N. H., Oct. 20—Dick Black, of Pekin, Ill., crack Dartmouth fullback may play part of the Harvard game. However, Coach Hawley will start the regular backfield, with Hamm at full.

Cambridge, Mass., Oct. 20—Defense against the bugaboo of Dartmouth's passing game continues to feature the Harvard workouts. Sam Burns is back at his end post.

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 20—Colgate's coaches are preparing for Wabash by improving the offensive attack. Defensive work is not being featured as very little is known of Wabash.

State College, Pa., Oct. 20—Penn State will hold a short signal drill today before leaving for Syracuse. With the exception of Joe Krall, who is injured, the regular team will start against the Orange.

Syracuse, N. Y., Oct. 20—With Captain Barbuti still on the injured list, Coach Andrews is having his troubles with the Syracuse backfield. Half a dozen candidates are being tried out.

New York, Oct. 20—The "four centaurs," Famous N. Y. U. backfield, have been disrupted. Ed Hill, by virtue of his defensive and interesting ability, has replaced Halfback Archie Roberts.

Mt. Gilead, Oct. 20—Investigations concerning the discovery of a lifeless newly born baby found one and one-half miles southwest of Denmark, Tuesday noon had revealed nothing yesterday according to F. L. Myers, prosecuting attorney.

Don't Squeeze Blackheads --Dissolve Them

Squeezing out blackheads makes large, ugly pores. The safe and sane way to get rid of these blemishes is to dissolve them. Get two ounces of Calonite powder from your drug store, sprinkle a little on a hot, wet cloth, rub over the blackheads, and every one, big or little, will disappear at once. —Adv.

MAKE MORE MONEY

Healthy, vigorous men land life's best prizes. Buoyant step, bright eyes, clear complexion and exuberant vitality denote a system free from impurities. Constipation poisons the whole system, slows the step, saps energy, destroys confidence and cuts down the earning power.

Rid your system of constipation and its poisons. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets remove them gently, tone up the system, clear the eyes and complexion and bring back normal vigor. A compound of vegetable ingredients, prescribed to patients for 20 years in place of calomel. They act easily and quickly on bowels and liver.

Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets and keep fit for the daily grind. Thousands of happy men and women use them regularly as an aid to success in their everyday tasks. Know them by their olive color, 15c, 30c, 60c.—Adv.

Sciatic-Neuritis

The sciatic erve, situated at the back of the hip joint is frequently the subject of Neuritis, giving rise to the painful disease Sciatica. The symptoms are intense pains which shoot down the thigh to the foot, often aggravated by walking, and with painful points along the course of the nerve, very tender to the touch.

The trouble is a very obstinate one and does not readily respond to ordinary treatment. It takes more than the usual pain sedative even to alleviate the pain. The best way to get relief from the persistent nerve racking pains of Neuritis is to get a bottle of Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2, which comes in capsule form. Take them as directed and in about 24 hours you should be able to notice that they have considerably reduced, if not almost banished, all pain and soreness. Continue faithfully and in a reasonable time you should be able to work and rest in comfort once again. Bradley's, Henney & Cooper keep Allenrhu Special Formula No. 2 in stock all the time and sells lots of it.—Adv.

They Called Her Scrawny But Not For Long

Is your face drawn and pinched? Your skin flabby? Are your cheeks sunken with great hollows under the eyes? Does your figure show unbecoming angles instead of the softly rounded slimness of youth?

All these conditions rob you of attractiveness and make you look old. But worst of all, these may actually be the symptoms of simple anaemia—that dread ailment so often suffered by women.

There's nothing so good as McCoy's Tablets to put on firm flesh, round out face and figure and build up rich, red blood.

So if you need a few pounds of flesh to round out the hollows, if you want to get back oldtime energy and health, get a box of McCoy's Tablets today. Just a short treatment will make you look and feel like a new person.

McCoy takes all the risk—Read this ironclad guarantee. If after taking 4 sixty cent boxes of McCoy's Tablets or 2 One Dollar boxes any thin, underweight man or woman doesn't gain at least 5 pounds and feel completely satisfied with the marked improvement in health—your druggist is authorized to return the purchase price.

Just ask for McCoy's Tablets at any drug store in America.—Adv.

SKIN ERUPTIONS YIELD TO SULPHUR

Apply Sulphur as Told When Your Skin Breaks Out

Any breaking out of the skin, even fiery, itching eczema, can be quickly overcome by applying a little Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist. Because of its germ destroying properties, this sulphur preparation begins at once to soothe irritated skin and heal eruptions such as rash, pimples and ring worm.

It seldom fails to remove the torment and disfigurement and you do not have to wait for relief from embarrassment. Improvement quickly shows. Sufferers from skin trouble should obtain a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur from any good druggist.—Adv.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—Adv.

Industrials Slip Backward in General Reaction

BEARS ATTACK OLD FAVORITES

Promising Rally of First Trading Hours Is Completely Blocked

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

Railroad stocks irregular; industrial stocks irregular; domestic bonds steady; foreign bonds steady; call money 3 1-2 per cent; grain fairly steady; copper firm; oil weak; cotton weak; rubber irregular; sugar irregular; pig iron steady; foreign exchange firm.

New York, Oct. 20—The downward movement in industrial stock prices gained considerable momentum today. Persistent professional selling of the market favorites, combined with real liquidation of long stocks that have been held for a considerable period, blocked completely the promising rally which appeared to be under way in the forenoon, and new low records for the current move were established by leading stocks.

Professionals in the Wall Street district made the best possible use of the unfavorable developments of the day, which included a succession of poor third quarterly earnings statements by a number of manufacturing companies; a decline in car freight loadings; widespread realization of the falling off in general business and in steel and automobile manufacturing; continued clouding of the political situation, with positive assurances that the Coolidge statement positively puts him out of the presidential race.

Rails Hold Firm

On the other hand, announcement was made of the intention of leading railroads to place substantial orders for new equipment of various kinds, including steel rails. As a rule the railroad stocks did not share the reactionary tone of the industrials, though the bulk of new sales in this department was at a lower range of prices.

As in the previous session, bearish traders concentrated heavy selling orders on United States Steel, General Motors and the high-priced specialties like Allied Chemical, Collins & Aikman, etc. most of which have been traveling upward quite buoyantly in recent weeks. Continued weakness was also apparent in the oil stocks and motors, Nash declines on heavy offerings to $2 1-2.

Big game hunters could hardly do without dogs in the great hunting districts. The hunter sounds a call, as right drawn bow that can be heard for many miles in the stillness of the woods, and the hounds give up the trail and come crashing and breaking through the underbrush—back to the camp in a great dense forest to be fed and cared for.

But money is just as important to us here in this densely populated and refined community of automobiles, fur coats, and coal bins, as dogs are to those hunters in the wild lands of bear, moose and cougar. And The City Loan is here to see that it answers your command.

When you want money sound a call that can be heard down our way.

ARGUMENTS ON BILLS PRINTED

Pamphlets Explaining Two Speoial Proposals Sent Out to Voters

Arguments for and against two special proposals which are to be submitted to voters of Ohio under the initiative and referendum law at the election, Nov. 8, appear in an official publicity pamphlet issued by the secretary of state, copies of which are now being received by residents of Marion County.

The official pamphlet is distributed through the mail from state headquarters to lists of voters furnished by the various county boards of elections. A complete list of Marion County voters was forwarded to the secretary of state's office about a week ago.

The two proposals are the Marshall bill which is to go before the electorate in a referendum vote, and the chiropractic bill, which is presented under provisions of the initiative law. It is sponsored by chiropractors of Ohio who want a law passed to establish a state license department for their profession.

The Marshall bill, enacted by the last legislature, provides a schedule of compensation for mayors and justices of the peace. Whether it is to become a law depends upon decision of the voters in the referendum.

Favorable Comments

Arguments in favor of the Marshall bill are presented by L. T. Marshall, senator from the Fifth-Sixth Ohio district and author of the measure. Also H. Etling, another state senator, and James A. White, former superintendent of the Ohio Anti-Saloon League and Ohio Dry Federation. Arguments against the bill are presented by George H. Bender, state senator from Cuyahoga County, Nils P. Johnson, M. E. Wolgamot, M. B. Cain and Charles C. Janes.

Arguments for the chiropractic bill are by O. L. Brown, Paul H. Strawl, John H. Stroh, Mary Jane Gast and George D. Meeker, and the opposition's statement is by Bleecker Marquette, secretary of the Cincinnati Health Federation, V. Lota Drimer, Lakewood, president of the Ohio State Association of Graduate Nurses and William C. Wendt, Columbus, member of the state legislature.

It is estimated that the annual street accident loss is fully one billion dollars, of which 54 million dollars is due to inadequate street lighting. This is more than the yearly expenditure for street lighting, without considering the human loss in injury and death. Thus good street lighting would cost less than nothing.

Murder Occurs at Nice; Jealousy Believed Motive by Police

Paris, Oct. 20—A Russian friend was being sought by French police today in connection with the murder at Nice of Mrs. Horace Lord of Fall River, Mass. Jealousy was believed by police to have been the motive.

Mrs. Lord, who was formerly Marcelle Vernet, daughter of Count Gustave Vernet, was found stabbed through the heart.

She had been separated from her husband for several years and had achieved some fame as a violinist.

MURDER RESULT OF LOVE CULT

Boston, Oct. 20—Horace Lord, Boston school principal, declared today that the murder of his wife in Nice, France, resulted from her associations with a love cult colony in Paris and her admiration for the late Isadora Duncan.

Cable dispatches yesterday told of Mrs. Lord being found stabbed through the heart.

Lord, son of a prominent Fall River family and principal of the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children, wept when informed of the tragic death of his wife and when he told of his belief of the circumstances which might have brought about her end.

Advices from France told of a Russian who is under suspicion for the crime. Lord declared his wife had written him recently of such a man—an accomplished violinist, he said—and that she had met him through the famous dancer, Isadora Duncan.

He denied that he and his wife had separated and produced weekly love-letters which he said he had received in the last few months.

LECTURE COURSE TO OPEN WEDNESDAY

Jack Woods' Male Quartet To Appear at Claridon School

Claridon, Oct. 20—A lyceum course for this year has been selected from the Redpath Lyceum Bureau. It consists of four numbers.

Jack Wood's Male Quartet and Bell Ringers introduce the course Wednesday, Oct. 26. The program is a varied one. In addition to the music of the bells and vocal selections, instrumental ensemble numbers, which employ violin, cello, banjo, and piano are to be given. Humorous readings are also included.

The second number will be Monday, Nov. 21, which brings Wherahiko Rawei, a native representative of Uncle Sam's Samoan Islanders.

The third number, Tuesday, Dec. 13, will be presented by Edward Reno, a magic and mystery "extraordinarist." Reno, who appears in ordinary evening dress so adroitly performs his tricks as to escape detection in every case.

The fourth and last number will be Tuesday, Feb. 3. It will consist of an interesting lecture by Frank Preston Johnson. He discusses social and economic problems.

EXHIBITS FEATURE OF CONVENTION HERE

Display of Industrial Art, Handcraft, Arranged for Conservation Meeting

An interesting exhibit held in connection with the eighth annual convention of the Ohio Child Conservation League, which opened yesterday at Hotel Harding is the display of industrial arts, handcraft and educational features, which occupies space at the south end of the ballroom at the hotel.

The work in the industrial arts is the production of pupils of the eighth and ninth grades of the public schools and includes parts of machinery and woodwork of all kinds. Included in the exhibit is the engine made by Paul Croman, and a ship made by Haver Alspach, 14, son of Mrs. O. C. Alspach, president of the Marion Circle, Child Conservation League. Other articles in the display are examples of needlework, notebook work, and work in nature study. The flat top desk made by pupils in the manual training department, Central Junior High School, is an outstanding piece of craftsmanship.

A cleverly made doll house, needlework, painting and other handcraft are included in the display of the work done by the children of the league, while the educational exhibit from the state included posters and literature along the line of health education.
